SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces recaptured the palace grounds of Hue's Citadel today from Communist troops which seized them 25 days ago, but heavy fighting continued in other parts of the Citadel.

A small force of government troops penetrated the fortified palace area early today, ripped down the Communist flag that had flown there since Jan. 31, and raised the government's colors on the 200-foot radio tower flagpole.

In early afternoon, a battalion of South Vietnamese soldiers and a company of rangers blasted through the palace area wall with mortars and cleared the palace within two hours against little opposition. The government troops reported two wounded.

The enemy troops apparently slipped out of the palace grounds into positions along the western half of the south wall of the 1 1/2-mile square Citadel, where heavy fighting was reported still in progress.

Associated Press correspondent George McArthur reported from Hue that there also were pockets of Communist resistance in a small area in the northwest corner and in a one-mile square area of stucco, hatched and tile houses just outside the east wall.

In Saigon, South Vietnamese military headquarters reported that government forces had killed a total of 250 Communist troops in scattered fighting today throughout the Citadel. Government losses were put at five dead and 22 wounded.

Meanwhile, North Vietnam's defense minister, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, was quoted as saying the war is entering "a fierce phase" in which there will be continual Communist attacks.

The latest enemy attacks included a 1,307-round shelling of the Khe Sanh U.S. Marine base—the second heaviest shelling of the war against that northwest frontier outpost—and another rocket assault on Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Airport.

Ten Marines were killed at Khe Sanh and 51 wounded, 30 of whom were treated and returned to duty. The shelling Friday was the heaviest since the Communists fired in 1,500 rounds of artillery, rockets and mortars Feb. 7.

An estimated 40,000 Communist troops are in and around the demilitarized zone and a major assault is expected, U.S. Commanders have said. The most likely target is the Khe Sanh base, guarded by 5,000 U.S. Marines and 500 Vietnamese rangers.

The shelling of Tan Son Nhut airport was the second concentrated barrage there in less than a week. One of the 18 Russian-designed 122mm rockets that hit the base tore through wooden barracks, killing four U.S. Air Force sergeants who had taken cover under their beds. Two other men in the barracks and 29 men elsewhere on the base, including a civilian were wounded.

Six rockets landed in a crowded section of Vietnamese home and shops just outside the base's main gate. A government spokesman said 11 civilian were killed and five or six wounded.

The base commander said slight damage to one of the airport's two runways was repaired and both runways remained operational.

For the flag-raising in Hue the province chief, Lt. Col. Pham Van Khoa, mustered several thousand people to watch from across the river, 500 yards away.

The first attempt failed. The red and yellow banner of the Saigon government rose halfway up the pole but then flutted to the ground when the rope either broke or was cut by the fusillade of gunfire that broke out when the ceremony began. Even so, a weak cheer went up from the spectators.

When the flag finally was raised 45 minutes later, almost no one was watching. Gunfire had broken out at several points on the Citadel side of the river. In general, the people live in fear of a Viet Cong return, random firing from the battle scene, snipers still holding out in the city and harassing Communist mortars and rockets.

American sources estimate the southern half of the city—the modern sector—has been 60 per cent destroyed. The devastation is equally great in the northern part, which includes the Citadel, McArthur reported. The city's population of some 145,000 is half refugee.

There is no reasonable estimate of the money it will take to rebuild the city, McArthur said. If the imperial throne and other treasures in the palace grounds of the Citadel are destroyed, they cannot be replaced.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Thant's Peace Ideas

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Informants say U.N. Secretary-General U Thant has prepared a comprehensive and important statement of how he thinks peace can be brought to Vietnam.

But some delegates say privately they believe the statement, to be issued today, is badly timed because the recent Viet Cong offensive has worsened the American bargaining position and made it harder for them to consider negotiations.

Advance indications were that Thant would say that the United States could get wide-ranging talks with North Vietnam if it stopped bombing that country, but that the Americans were still holding out for a promise that North Vietnam would not take military advantage of a bombing halt.

Only a week ago—two days after talking with the North Vietnamese—Thant told a reporter he was "more convinced than ever" that if the United States stopped the bombing, North Vietnam would enter talks in two or three weeks.

In his latest policy-sounding world swing, Thant held talks with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin of the Soviet Union, Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain, and President Charles de Gaulle of France, in their respective capitals.

He saw North Vietnamese Consul-General Nguyen Hoa in New Delhi Feb. 8 and North Vietnamese Delegate-General Mai Van Bo in Paris Feb. 4. There were reports that Thant submitted some questions to Hoa and got the answers from Bo. The questions dealt with North Vietnam's position on peace negotiations.

Thant set out on his trip a few weeks after North Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Van Trinh said talks "will" follow a cessation of the bombing—not

"can," as he had stated 11 months earlier.

Before Thant got back to New York, Trinh had added that talks would start as soon as there was proof that the bombing had stopped. Unconfirmed reports said Thant was told that this meant two days if there was a U.S. announcement of the stoppage, two weeks if there was not.

Some U.N. diplomats said the North Vietnamese told him that once the bombing was over, they would be willing to discuss anything the United States wanted to discuss, including de-escalation of the war in South Vietnam.

Intermittently for the last two years, Thant has promoted a three-point peace plan that calls for stopping the bombing of North Vietnam, scaling down all military activities in South Vietnam and admitting to the peace table the Viet Cong's political arm, the National Liberation Front.

Two Men Are Killed In Dutchess Mishap

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Traffic accidents on area highways killed two young men and resulted in personal injuries to 10 other persons, according to State Police who investigated. Two men were taken into custody on charges of drunken driving.

A spectacular traffic accident on the Taconic State Parkway one half mile north of McDonnell Road, Town of Lagrange, at 9:30 p.m. Friday took the lives of two men and resulted in injuries to five other persons. A Pleasant Valley man was arrested by Rhinebeck State Police and held on a charge of drunken driving.

State Trooper J. F. Jacob said the vehicles were operated by Thomas F. King, 27, of Valleyview Road, Pleasant Valley, Richard J. Lally, 21, of 2316 Andrews Avenue, the Bronx, and Stephen Patterson, 23, of 22 Planting Field, Roslyn. Killed in the mishap were Lally, and a passenger, John Garrison, 20, of 218-11 Hillside Avenue, Queens. They died of multiple internal and other injuries, authorities reported.

King was charged with driving while intoxicated by Trooper J. S. McLean, who investigated. King escaped with lacerations of the chin. He was held in $50 bail.

According to state troopers, Lally and Patterson were traveling north on the parkway and King was driving south in the northbound traffic lane. Trooper Jacob said King's car forced Lally off the highway and into a tree on the east side of the parkway. There was no contact between the two vehicles, troopers said.

King's car continued north for 7/10's of a mile still in the southbound lane and crashed into Patterson's vehicle.

Injured and taken to area hospitals were Patterson's mother, Mrs. Helen Patterson, 45, who sustained lacerations of the head; James Cunningham, 22, of 40-93 Elton Avenue, Bronx, fractured right hand and lacerations of the face and legs; William Canavan, 20, of 1098 Grand Avenue, the Bronx, lacerations of the face and legs and internal injuries; and Patrick Murphy, 22, of 656 East 231st Street, the Bronx, abrasions of the left arm and back, and neck injuries. The latter three were passengers in Lally's car.

Two persons were injured at 2:50 a. m. today, when the car in which they were riding went out of control on the approach to the Mid-Hudson Bridge at Highland, and overturned on its roof. State Trooper Robert Whalen said the car was driven by Stephen Provost, 21, of Plattsburgh, and owned by Howard Murray, 21, of 54 Kinry Road, Poughkeepsie.

Murray sustained a bump on the head and said he would see his own physician. Another passenger, Michael Toombs, 18, of

A two-car collision at 8:50 p. m. Friday, on Route 209 on the Wawarsing bridge, resulted in the arrest of Albert Krom, 31, of Pine Bush, on a charge of drunken driving and other vehicle and traffic counts. The other vehicle was driven by Louise Prochaska, 25, of Mill Road, Olivebridge.

Pick Up in Car

Investigation by Trooper J. E. Kelly, of Ellenville, showed the woman was traveling north and Krom was going south on the highway when the latter vehicle reportedly pulled to the left and the crash resulted. Senior BCI Investigator Vincent Versage said Krom was picked up later by Sergeant H. S. Rhodes, who saw the motorist sitting in his car near the B. & H. Garage, near Ellenville.

Krom was released in $50 bail by Wawarsing Town Justice Herbert Poppel, who adjourned hearing until March 8. Troopers reported no injuries.

Three persons were injured at 5:05 p. m. Friday, in a two-car crash which occurred on Route 28 west of the Boiceville School in Boiceville. Kingston State Police listed the drivers as Dorothy Buley, 48, of that community, and Joseph Campbell, 47, RD 1, Rensselaer.

Trooper R. O. Rieseberg reported both vehicles were going west on the highway when Campbell started to pass as the woman suddenly attempted a left turn and the vehicles collided. Dorothy Buley sustained a fractured ankle and rib injuries. Ruth Campbell, 44, received a sprained left leg. Nancy Campbell, 6, lost a tooth and received a bump on the head. She and her mother were taken to the Margaretville Hospital. The Boiceville woman was removed to Kingston Hospital by Doctors Ambulance.

Appellate Backs Kane

The Democrats made it two in a row as their reapportionment plan for Kingston was approved by the State Appellate Court yesterday afternoon.

The court heard an appeal of a decision by Supreme Court Justice T. Paul Kane of Jan. 29 in which Kane approved the Democratic plan for a redistricted city with 13 aldermen over a Republican plan for 13 aldermen running at-large.

City Clerk and Democratic Chairman Thomas R. Lyle was understandably "elated" this morning when interviewed by The Freeman, on the decision. Lyle said the next step is for the Common Council to set up election districts and designate polling places. Then each party will elect committeemen from each district followed by party caucuses for the June primary. Designating petitions for those candidates are expected to be out in mid-April.

All Common Council seats are up for election this November, with aldermen running for one-year terms. They will then run again for two-year terms with the mayor and alderman-at-large in 1969.

Reapportionment in Kingston goes back to 1966 when Harry M. Thayer and Robert F. Davis filed a citizen's suit against the Common Council charging the Council was not apportioned according to the one-man-one-vote edict of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Kingston was ordered to reapportion itself and this has been done under Edward Norton (D-Seventh Ward), chairman of the Common Council Reapportionment Committee.

However, yesterday's Appellate Court decision may not be the end of legal maneuvers as one of the plaintiffs, Thayer, told The Freeman today he will seek every avenue of appeal in order to have the Democratic plan rejected.

Will Study Visa Requirements

By ROBERT GRAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's proposed easing of visa requirements for tourists from abroad is in for a close, hard look on Capitol Hill.

The Senate Judiciary Committee in particular is expected to take a highly cautious approach when it begins processing the legislation unveiled Friday by Johnson at the Texas White House.

There is strong support on the Judiciary Committee for the present system in which most foreigners planning on traveling in this country must obtain a visa through a U.S. consulate and undergo an immigration check on arrival, sources reported.

Under the bill Johnson announced he was sending Congress—

—Foreigners wanting to visit this country would not need visas if they planned to stay for 90 days or less, had a valid passport and nonrefundable, round-trip tickets and their own countries made reciprocal arrangements for U.S. travelers.

—Security risks, narcotics dealers and persons of serious crimes would be barred, as would persons simply bent on getting a job in the United States.

Because of the requirement for reciprocity, it is expected the eased requirements would apply primarily to tourists from Western Europe.

However, two Communist nations—Bulgaria and Yugoslavia—currently waive visa requirements for American travelers.

Yugoslavia has waived such requirements through Nov. 1, 1968. Bulgaria has waived them through 1968, with the stipulation that the American tourist makes arrangements through the official Bulgarian travel agency, "Balkan Tourist."

The administration is said to consider it unlikely that other Iron Curtain countries would be willing to waive visa requirements on U. S. citizens visiting them.

There are no such requirements for visitors from Canada and Mexico. The President advanced the plan as another effort to cut the U.S. balance-of-payments deficit. Part of that problem stems from the substantially larger amounts U.S. tourists spend abroad than overseas visitors spend here.

While not disputing the President's goals, some members of the Senate Judiciary Committee were reported concerned about the possibility of insufficient controls on visitors entering this country.

It was pointed out that some machinery would be needed to screen out the security risks, narcotics dealers and criminals specifically exempted by the Presidential proposal.

One committee source questioned whether an effective screening program was compatible with eliminating "the time-consuming entry requirements" the President mentioned.

Defends Sales Tax

Alderman Peter Mancuso (D-Eighth Ward), chairman of the Common Council Finance Committee, today termed suggestions to withhold the implementation of the two per cent city sales tax until July 1, "irresponsible."

The tax is due to go into effect next Friday. Said Mancuso, "Remarks about repealing the sales tax are irresponsible inasmuch as the budget has already been passed and the anticipated revenue has been figured. No one has proposed an alternative to come up with the loss of revenue if we delay the sales tax or repeal it."

Mayor Raymond W. Garrahan, in proposing the tax, had figured on $325,000 in revenue for 1968. This represents six months of collection as the last quarter of the year cannot be counted. Money collected from that period will be forthcoming in the first quarter of 1969.

Thursday, the Kingston Area of all," Mancuso said, "I'm a Chamber of Commerce at-merchant and I have no question about the administration for what is to be taxed and for how much." The alderman is co-manager of the Shamrock Tavern on Broadway.

"The state sales tax bureau sent instructions on the sales tax to my place of business. It lists all of the cities and counties in the state with sales taxes and what their rates are."

"Collection procedures are simple," Mancuso said. Just double the tax and send the check to Albany."

Said Mancuso in conclusion, "I didn't want anyone to misunderstand that I'm in favor of more taxes. However, taxes are the means of financing our government operations. We need the money that will come in from the sales tax. If we didn't have the sales tax we would have had to have a drastic rise in real estate taxes and no one wants that."

Your Life, Mine

By Clyde Herbert Shell

"THANK GOD FOR SLEEP" Miguel De Cervantes has said: "Blessing on him who invented sleep—the mantle that covers all human thoughts, the food that quenches thirst, the drink that warms cold, the cold that moderates heat, and, lastly, the general coin that purchases all things, the balance and weight that equals the shepherd with the king, and the simple with the wise."

What a great blessing it is to be able to sleep well. Those who slumber, well, uninduced by drugs, have a tremendous asset for the good life working in their favor. For without sleep it is impossible to keep going. The body is not made to go on and on incessantly without periods of refreshment and the rebuilding of energies in restful slumber.

Sleep that is fitful and spasmodic makes some contribution to renewed fitness and restored energy. But nothing like the boon of slumber that is genuine and deep. Nothing can compare with a good night's sleep to unravel the snarls and restore to us the necessary energy and perspective with which to meet life constructively and creatively.

Now this ability to sleep varies, as we all know, with individual persons. Some folks seem to be born with the innate capacity to drop off to sleep in a jiffy, and some are not. Often we have heard a person say: "I am a poor sleeper." Temperament is mightily involved in the slumber project. And so are a lot of other things.

Personal problems, for example, that are pressing us, with no solution in sight, will scare the sandman away. He won't come to the soul that is severely upset or unduly agitated.

Often we could induce slumber if only we could turn our minds off. But they so often stubbornly, and very much against our wishes, keep working long after we have retired for the night. If only the Good Lord had put a switch on our minds, it sometimes would be a tremendous boon. But He did not see fit to do that.

Then, too, there is a positive correlation between conscience and the ability to sleep. Not to be sure, to the extent that one can point and accusing finger at every person who has trouble sleeping and say: "If you lived right, sleeping would not be a problem." Life is not quite that simple. But for all of that, the clear conscience is a distinct asset when it comes to entertaining, naturally and normally, the sandman.

Exenham makes a point well worth pondering when he writes: "Thank God for sleep! And when you cannot sleep, Still thank Him that you live To He awake."

Meany on Arbitration

Deeply troubled about the mounting labor strife among public employees across the nation, George Meany, the head of the organized labor movement, for the first time has elevated the need for continued public service to the level of the right to strike. Perhaps the best answer, he thought, might be some system whereby public service unions would subscribe to voluntary arbitration by an impartial party with agreements binding on both sides.

This is a complete reversal for the labor leader, brought on by the fear that strikes of public service employees, if they continue unchecked, could create adverse public reaction and result in repressive legislation. In fact, strong business elements are pushing for legislation that would create labor courts or otherwise reduce the power of labor.

Meany made his remarks at a news conference at the winter meeting of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, of which he is president. The effect on public opinion of strikes, by municipal, board of education and county employees, which have dislocated public services in transit, in education, in garbage collection, was very much on his mind.

Labor has won its great power by the influence of its cohesiveness and support of politicians willing to do its bidding. Actually, organized labor makes up barely one-fourth of the nation's labor force. If once the other three-fourths get aroused, whatever the incitement, they could destroy labor's power. This must always be weighed whenever labor gets too greedy.

The public employee strikes could indirectly serve the public interest if they cause organized labor to restrain these employees from involving all of the labor movement in their problem.

Foreign Tourist Danger

American travelers have been lured to Europe for years by various gimmicks that reduced the price of travel, including a favorable rate of exchange. The United States has gone a long way to provide similar inducements for foreigners to come here this year and, if successful, for years to come.

However, we think there should be considerable caution about one recommendation of the President's special task force on travel—the abolition of visa requirements for foreign tourists and business men and the waiving of visa requirements for visitors from Communist countries coming for conventions. Such requirements might be eased, but not eliminated. The few dollars we might pick up by this method is not worth opening wide our doors to Communist agents and infiltrators. We are still in a cold war and American tourists are still subject to harassment in Communist countries.

Oral customs declarations might be adapted also, so long as the Customs Service keeps a keen eye on possible drug smugglers. We just must not go hog wild in this tourist business. Some things are more important and should not be overlooked by those responsible.

Education for Majority

Traditionally, high schools offer separate courses to students bound for college and those headed directly for jobs after graduation. While the numbers preparing for college have grown by leaps and bounds in recent years, the ratio of dropouts from college has also grown. The result is, that those taking college preparatory courses in high school who drop out before finishing college, find themselves handicapped.

That is one reason why the U.S. Office of Education is making a variety of educational concepts available in junior and senior high schools on a test basis in 14 selected high schools in 13 states. One concept will be to reduce the separation of students and their goals. For instance, physics students would learn the principles of pulleys and levers by going to the industrial art department and boys' training to be mechanics might write essays on how to repair a car.

Individualized instruction, the use of computers and other devices, a practical approach for students not adept academically are other concepts that will be tried. Each of the test schools, scattered across the country, will develop and operate a model new curriculum especially suited to students it serves.

This is making education not only practical but useful for all grades of students. The college student who learns the principles of physics and chemistry from actual participation will have a broader concept of science as a whole. And the thesis-writing mechanic should be better prepared for a full life.

Pierre Salinger, former White House press secretary, predicts that the Democrats would win the Presidency again in 1968, that Senator Eugene McCarthy's candidacy is healthy for the party, but he will not win a single primary. Pierre is banking that Republicans will be in disarray.

"Why Are You Such a Pessimist?"

Henry J. Taylor Says

LBJ'S Self-Esteem Is Sacrilegious

The great fact about George Washington was his character. It was the peculiar genius of Washington and the atmosphere his character created that let loose the genius of the other men around him—the immortal circle of our founding fathers.

Gen. Robert E. Lee's father, Washington's neighbor and a hero under his command, was chosen to deliver the funeral oration when Washington died and coined the undying "first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

George Washington's selflessness was the key to this. And it is a great compliment to our country that across a period of time the United States has always awarded its highest palms—"first in the hearts of our countrymen"—to selfless leaders.

Unselfishness alone has not been sufficient, of course, but in its final verdict hasn't America's unstinted accolade gone only to such men? In what other great nation has this been true?

Tom Paine attacked George Washington. But Thomas Jefferson, not Paine, delivered history's final verdict: "He was, in every sense of the words, a wise, a good and a great man."

Yes, Washington was attacked, and Abraham Lincoln and Lee, too, and other of our marvelous giants. But that wasn't why they were giants.

And, by comparing himself to our hallowed great relentlessly heating up his violin on this theme, President Johnson can hardly complain if somebody points out that the shoes he has so prematurely seized do not seem to fit.

Great men are a small family on this earth and Mr. Johnson will never hijack himself into that circle this way. As Gen. Andrew Jackson to his artilleryman at the Battle of New Orleans, "Boy, elevate them guns a little lower."

Beginning with unselfishness, I believe may be fairly stated that throughout his entire 59-year lifetime Mr. Johnson has not built any reputation whatever as a selfless man. Nor has he as President. In fact, undeserved or not, probably the heaviest single drag on President Johnson's prestige is the tragically widespread conviction that he's a wheeler-dealer. Did our giants carry any aura of being somebody who would sell you the family prayer mat?

Next, each of them at some time said the three short words hardest to pronounce: "I was wrong." Read Lincoln's masterpiece letter to Gen. Joseph Hooker or the memoirs of those who were with Robert E. Lee in Texas! Instead, millions find Mr. Johnson like Rostand's lady who told her sister she did not know how it happened, "but I am the only person in the world who is always right."

Beyond this, the truth was rock under Washington's feet and when any of our giants like Washington or Lincoln or any other said something, an enemy, like Paine, may not have liked what he said, but he believed him—and so did our country. Mr. Johnson's

"credibility gap," one of the most dangerous features of our present day, is not only famous, it's notorious. Moreover, it seems world-wide. Where Esperanto failed, "Oh, yeah?" regarding Mr. Johnson is becoming a universal language.

It's doubtful that, undeserved or not, any President of the United States—any President—ever had as bad a reputation for truth telling as he has. For example, it became impossible to follow Sen. Barry Goldwater as he went schussing down the 1964 slope, but the parallel between what candidate Goldwater urged, what President Johnson ignored, what Goldwater said, what the President denied, and what the President is doing is positively devastating. Or, to go on, who is responsible for the polls' findings that the majority of the American people do not believe they are being told the full truth, or have ever been told the full truth, about the Vietnam war?

The public's disbelief in the government's integrity is the inevitable result of President Johnson's performances. And the inevitable cynicism about him reflects the scorn deserved and usually received by promise breakers, whoever they are.

I wish President Lyndon B. Johnson would please, please quit comparing himself to our hallowed giants. How presumptuous can you get? It is not only historically ridiculous and intellectually absurd for Mr. Johnson to keep promoting this parallel but it is in the poorest possible taste. He should abandon the outrageous sacrilege at once.

Romney Tags Nixon a Loser

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent
NEA N.Y. Editor, N.H. (NEA)—In a crucial catch-up effort, Michigan's Gov. George Romney and his managers are mounting a heavier and more direct assault upon front running Richard Nixon whose effect could be, among other things, to paint him as a loser.

Under present plans, the word itself will never be used as the Romney forces try to pull back from an indicated big vote deficit in the closing weeks of the New Hampshire primary campaign.

But the message will be plain enough for all who read New Romney advertisements are designed to ask voters bluntly: "Who has been a winner in the '60s?"

The answer, of course, is Romney—three times elected governor with constantly enlarging margins. By unspoken contrast, Nixon lost the presidency in 1960 and the California governorship in 1962.

As the campaign moves to a climax, this contrast may be sharpened by Romney strategists. It may be pointed out, for instance, that in heavily Democratic Detroit Nixon in 1960 as presidential nominee got just 23 per cent of the vote, while Romney in his 1966 governorship race won some 40 per cent of the total.

The decision to go this route is one of several key strategy judgments made by Romney leaders in recent top level conferences here. They are concerned by poll indications and others which suggest that an effectively campaigning Nixon may be widening the gap over Romney.

Even without these fresh discouraging signs, some Romney strategists have been wanting to draw the election-performance contrast between the governor and Nixon.

The reasoning is simple. They figure a critical 20 to 25 per cent of Nixon's indicated vote potential is soft, and that it is soft because many New Hampshire voters doubt whether he could beat President Johnson next November.

The problem that has been fretting the Romney camp is how to play on these fears without getting into open personal attack upon Nixon. The decisions just made are intended to get at this by positively stressing not only Romney's proven electability but also his suitability for the big cities where the votes are.

In this latter connection, new Romney advertisements underscore that he, not the Nixon unmentioned in the ads, is the man who has been governing well in a big-city state during a period of the '60s marked by the greatest racial and general urban turbulence in the nation's history.

It is an effort at once to suggest Romney's possible appeal to the vote-rich cities of America and to turn at least part way around the "experience" issue Nixon uses to emphasize his foreign affairs background.

Already well out in the open is Romney's attempt to hack away at Nixon in the foreign affairs field.

The move to try to identify Nixon's basically hawkish Vietnam views with President Johnson's operating policies is obviously an assault upon what is widely deemed to be the former vice president's area of greatest strength—foreign affairs.

Yet it is another way of questioning Nixon's electability. New Hampshire voters are being encouraged to believe that he has nothing new to offer and thus presents no real choice for November. New Romney strategy calls for hitting this theme even harder by suggesting that Nixon's foreign policy outlook unchanged from the late 1940's when he first attacked communism.

Ground-breaking for an addition to the Woodstock Library was scheduled for Feb. 25.

Drew Pearson Says Asian-Communists Following Blueprint Guevara Designed

(Editor's Note: Jack Anderson today report from Hong Kong.)

HONG KONG—Communist insurrection has broken out like red measles all over Asia. It presents the harassed United States with a dozen new fronts where it may be asked to fight.

Intelligence maps, shown to this column, showing with alarming red splashes representing guerrilla outbreaks from Burma to Indonesia. The insurrectionists not only are goaded by the shrill voice of Peking but are aided directly by communist arms and agitators now moving down the infiltration routes.

In Thailand alone, three small but separate pocket wars have erupted in the south, north and northeast. Not even Burma and Cambodia, for all their kowtowing to Peking, have been spared.

The communist strategy is to harass the United States all over the map, thereby scattering our forces: in a nutshell—to disperse and conquer. This grand design was outlined by Ernesto "Che" Guevara, the communist martyr, just before he was gunned down with a ragtag guerrilla band in the Bolivian mountains.

His blueprint for world revolution has been circulated widely among the communists of Asia. It has also been sent to Washington by Gen. Charles Bonesteel, the U. N. commander in Korea, as recommended reading.

"The general tactics of the people," wrote Guevara, "must be to hit hard and incessantly at every point of confrontation. . . . We must wage a general-type action whose tactical goal will be to draw the enemy out of his surroundings, forcing him to fight in places where his living habits clash with the actual situation."

In Asia, the situation is explosive, and the points of friction are not just Vietnam and Laos, where fighting is going on. Others are Cambodia, Thailand, Malaysia and, of course, Indonesia, where we cannot believe the last word has been said in spite of the destruction of the communist party in that country.

Guevara called for fomenting "intransigent hatred of the enemy that pushes a man beyond natural human limits and makes him an efficient, violent, selective, cold machine for killing."

Score Card of Strategy
Here is how Guevara's strategy is already taking shape, country by country, in Asia:

Burma—Red Chinese advisers in civilian clothes have been slipping across the border to direct an uprising against the Burmese government. They are attempting to unite dissident Kashin and Karen rebels under the "White-Flag Communists," an underground organization led by Thakshin Than Tun. His deputy, Thakshin Ba Thein Tin, recently turned up in Peking where he boasted: "Our people's army is active in over 60 per cent of Burma, and we are winning one victory after another."

Cambodia—North Vietnamese troops have infiltrated into Cambodia to bolster the Kmer Serai, as the Cambodian Communists are known. They control two entire provinces and many outlying villages. When Cambodia's Prince Norodom Sihanouk recently softened his anti-American attitude, he received a brutal warning from Peking. In a speech monitored by the U.S., he told his people: "They (the Maoists) threaten us. When verbal threats failed, they decided to foment war in our country. They said: 'If you do not break right away with the Americans, if you do not return to your former policy—that is, the pro-Chinese and pro-Viet Minh satellites—you will have war. If you are going to normalize your relations with the Americans, if you continue to prime their bombs, and if you want to strike a bargain with them, then you will have war with me. You will have to choose between having war with the Americans or having war with me.'"

India—Communist agitators are stirring up the peasants in West Bengal to revolt against the government. Chinese infiltrators are reported to have made contact with rebellious Naga and Bizo tribesmen in northeastern India. The Chinese also are sowing trouble in the Himalayan border states, which India is obliged by treaty to protect.

Indonesia—Several clashes have been reported in West Borneo between Chinese-led guerrillas and government troops. Meanwhile, Peking's organizers are trying to reorganize the decimated Indonesian Communist party, known there as the P.K.I.

Laos—Despite a 1962 ceasefire agreement, guaranteed by all the big powers, the Pathet Lao communists have gone on the attack again in Laos. Nothing but a bush-league royal army and the threat of American intervention keeps the reds from rolling over Laos. North Vietnam has 40,000 troops in the country, and Peking has brazenly distributed publicity pictures showing soldiers of the "Laotian People's Liberation Army" studying the works of Mao Tse-tung.

The Philippines—The pro-communist Huk, all but stamped out in the 1950's, have staged a comeback in the Philippines. Their leader, Luis Taruc, is still serving a lengthy prison sentence for his guerrilla activities. But his place has now been taken by a relative—Pedro Taruc. Intelligence reports claim the real power, however, is the No. 2 Huk, Faustino Del Mundo, who goes by the romantic name, Commander Sumulong. The Huk have made an alliance with Filipino bandit bands, which prey upon merchants and travelers. Together, the Huk and their armed mercenaries control the great plains of central Luzon all the way to the very gates of Manila.

Thailand—North Vietnam has also sent guerrillas into Thailand to infiltrate areas heavily populated by Thais of Vietnamese descent. The Chinese have also smuggled arms to the guerrillas in South Korea. And in every Asia country, the communist underground is active. Here in Hong Kong the reds rioted in the streets but were battered down by the cool, efficient British. There is no doubt, however, that they are merely waiting to rise again.

The urgent question, which the policymakers in Washington have yet to solve, is how to combat the Guevara strategy.

The World Today

Mills May Exact Steep Price for Travel Tax Support

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson's proposed tax on American travel outside the Western Hemisphere has a big plus behind it that his income tax hike proposal lacks: The support of Rep. Wilbur D. Mills.

But the Arkansas Democrat and chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee—who steers that tax-writing panel according to his own economic views and not necessarily the White House—may exact a price for his support the administration finds steep.

Mills has told associates there is no chance of corraling the House votes to pass a foreign travel bill unless it contains some attractions for members worried about competition that imports pose for products of their districts.

The push in Congress for quotas on imports or other similar devices worries the advocates of international trade with minimum restrictions. This has been the proclaimed goal of U. S. policy from the days of Franklin D.

Roosevelt and Cordell Hull.

Today tariffs have been bargained down until they are relatively insignificant and the United States has been relieved ready to tackle next the nontariff barriers to trade—quotas, border taxes, export subsidies and the like.

But the chronic U. S. deficit in international payments has strengthened the hand of those advocating protection of U. S. industries in the domestic market. This is true even though the United States has maintained a surplus of exports over imports. The payments deficit resulted from other factors, such as tourist spending, investment abroad and government military and aid outlays.

U. S. Trade Surplus

The administration has promised recommendations to improve the U. S. trade surplus as part of the larger programs for righting the payments balance. Mills has pointedly told the administration to hurry up.

The question now worrying administration strategists is whether Mills will insist on stronger measures than the U. S. trade negotiators would recommend as part of the package with some form of travel tax.

The General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, to which this country and its principal trading partners give allegiance, sanctions a few kinds of protection devices while banning most.

But if the United States tried to institute border taxes on imports, for instance, it would likely provoke complaints to GATT, which distinguishes among the kinds of taxes to be equalized. The U. S. system, under which an important part of the total tax levy is imposed by states and local subdivisions, is not exactly paralleled elsewhere.

In any case, much the clamor in Congress is for conceivably more drastic measures, such as quotas. Mills himself has introduced a tentative quota bill, one of many such measures in behalf of a multitude of industries. Mills has not pushed his quota bill, but it does nothing to diminish his bargaining power with the administration.

Estonia 50th Anniversary

Editor, The Freeman:

Estonians have lived on the shores of the Baltic sea some three thousand years. They belong to the Finno-Ugric Group of Nations and are linguistically akin to the Finns.

Estonia was a free country up to the 13th century, then an era of foreign occupation started. In 1918 Estonia and other Baltic States (Latvia and Lithuania) reemerged as independent states after War of Liberation against Soviet Russia.

In Peace Treaties with the three Baltic States Soviet Russia recognized without any reserve the sovereignty and independence of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania and forever renounced all the rights possessed by Russia.

The Western Great Powers extended de jure recognition during 1918-22 and the Baltic States were admitted to the League of Nations.

During the years of independence Estonia and other Baltic States saw an unparalleled surge in all spheres of life. They were prosperous and progressive members of the world community of nations, factors of peace and stability in Europe.

On August 23rd, 1939 the Soviet Russia concluded a "non-aggression pact" with Hitler (Molotov-Ribbentrop pact). According to a secret protocol to the pact Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania were given over to the Soviet "sphere of influence" and in June 1940 large contingents of Soviet troops and tanks poured to the Baltic States and Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania were forcibly occupied and illegally annexed by Soviet Union.

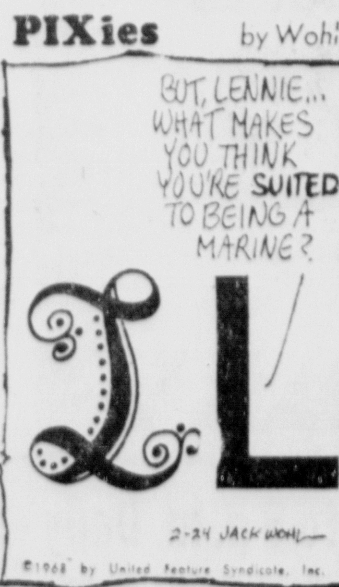

Genocide, terror, indoctrination, economic exploitation—these have been the main features of the Soviet rule in

Baltic countries. Over one half million Estonians, Latvians and Lithuanians have perished in Soviet concentration camps. The Baltic people are today denied the basic human rights. At a time when western colonialism has all but vanished Soviet Russian colonialism flourishes in the Baltic States.

The United States has steadfastly refused to recognize the Soviet annexation of the Baltic States. Estonian, Latvian and Lithuanian diplomatic representatives continue functioning in the United States. Most countries of the free world hold Soviet occupation of the Baltic States illegal. Their stand is based on the principle that the passage of time does not transform an international crime into a legal acceptable situation.

On February 24th, 1968 Estonians all over the free Western World are commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of their independence (1918-1968) and are continuing the struggle for the independence of their homeland and for the freedom of Estonian people from the communist tyranny and from the yoke of Soviet Union.

Lee in Texas! Instead, millions find Mr. Johnson like Rostand's lady who told her sister she did not know how it happened, "but I am the only person in the world who is always right."

Beyond this, the truth was rock under Washington's feet and when any of our giants like Washington or Lincoln or any other said something, an enemy, like Paine, may not have liked what he said, but he believed him—and so did our country. Mr. Johnson's

"credibility gap," one of the most dangerous features of our present day, is not only famous, it's notorious. Moreover, it seems world-wide. Where Esperanto failed, "Oh, yeah?" regarding Mr. Johnson is becoming a universal language.

It's doubtful that, undeserved or not, any President of the United States—any President—ever had as bad a reputation for truth telling as he has. For example, it became impossible to follow Sen. Barry Goldwater as he went schussing down the 1964 slope, but the parallel between what candidate Goldwater urged, what President Johnson said, what the President denied, and what the President is doing is positively devastating. Or, to go on, who is responsible for the polls' findings that the majority of the American people do not believe they are being told the full truth, or have ever been told the full truth, about the Vietnam war?

The public's disbelief in the government's integrity is the inevitable result of President Johnson's performances. And the inevitable cynicism about him reflects the scorn deserved and usually received by promise breakers, whoever they are.

I wish President Lyndon B. Johnson would please, please quit comparing himself to our hallowed giants. How presumptuous can you get? It is not only historically ridiculous and intellectually absurd for Mr. Johnson to keep promoting this parallel but it is in the poorest possible taste. He should abandon the outrageous sacrilege at once.

Romney Tags Nixon a Loser

By BRUCE BLOSSAT. NEA Washington Correspondent. MANCHESTER, N.H. (NEA) — In a crucial catch-up effort, Michigan's Gov. George Romney and his managers are mounting a heavier and more direct assault upon front running Richard Nixon whose effect could be, among other things, to paint him as a loser.

Under present plans, the word itself will never be used as the Romney forces try to pull back from an indicated big vote deficit in the closing weeks of the New Hampshire primary campaign.

But the message will be plain enough for all who read. New Romney advertisements are designed to ask voters bluntly: "Who has been a winner in the '60s?"

The answer, of course, is Romney—three times elected governor with constantly enlarging margins. By unspoken contrast, Nixon lost the presidency in 1960 and the California governorship in 1962.

As the campaign moves to a climax, this contrast may be sharpened by Romney strategists. It may be pointed out, for instance, that in heavily Democratic Detroit Nixon in 1960 as presidential nominee got just 23 per cent of the vote, while Romney in his 1966 governorship race won some 40 per cent of the total.

The decision to go this route is one of several key strategy judgments made by Romney leaders in recent top level conferences here. They are concerned by poll indications and others which suggest that an effectively campaigning Nixon may be widening the gap over Romney.

Even without these freshly discouraging signs, some Romney strategists have been wanting to draw the election-performance contrast between the governor and Nixon.

The reasoning is simple. They figure a critical 20 to 25 per cent of Nixon's indicated vote potential is soft, and that it is soft because many New Hampshire voters doubt whether he could beat President Johnson next November.

The problem that has been fretting the Romney camp is how to play on these fears without getting into open personal attack upon Nixon. The decisions just made are intended to get at this by positively stressing not only Romney's proven electability but also his suitability for the big cities where the votes are.

In this latter connection, new Romney advertisements underscore that he, not the Nixon mentioned in the ads, is the man who has been governing well in a big-city state during a period of the '60s marked by the greatest racial and general urban turbulence in the nation's history.

It is an effort at once to suggest Romney's possible appeal to the vote-rich cities of America and to turn at least part way around the "experience" issue Nixon uses to emphasize his foreign affairs background.

Already well out in the open is Romney's attempt to hack away at Nixon in the foreign affairs field.

The move to try to identify Nixon's basically hawkish Vietnam views with President Johnson's operating policies is, obviously, an assault upon what is widely deemed to be the former vice president's area of greatest strength—foreign affairs.

Yet it is another way of questioning Nixon's electability. New Hampshire voters are being encouraged to believe that he has nothing new to offer and thus presents no real choice for November. New Romney strategy calls for hitting this theme even harder by suggesting that Nixon's foreign policy outlook is unchanged from the late 1940's when he first attacked communism.

Drew Pearson Says Asian-Communists Following Blueprint Guevara Designed

(Editor's Note: Jack Anderson today report from Hong Kong.)

HONG KONG — Communist insurrection has broken out like red measles all over Southeast Asia. It presents the harassed United States with a dozen new fronts where it may be asked to fight.

Intelligence maps, shown to this column, are covered with alarming red splashes representing guerrilla outbreaks from Burma to Indonesia. The insurrectionists not only are goaded by the shrill voice of Peking but are aided directly by communist arms and agitators now moving down the infiltration routes.

In Thailand alone, three small but separate pocket wars have erupted in the south, north and northeast. Not even Burma and Cambodia, for all their kowtowing to Peking, have been spared.

The communist strategy to harass the United States all over the map, thereby scattering our forces in a nutshell—to disperse and conquer. This grand design was outlined by Ernesto "Che" Guevara, the communist martyr, just before he was gunned down with a ragtag guerrilla band in the Bolivian mountains.

His blueprint for world revolution has been circulated widely among the communists of Asia. It has also been sent to Washington by Gen. Charles Bonesteel, the U. N. commander in Korea, as recommended reading.

"The general tactics of the people," wrote Guevara, "must be to hit hard and incessantly at every point of confrontation. . . . We must wage a general-type action whose tactical goal will be to draw the enemy out of his surroundings, forcing him to fight in places where his living habits clash with the actual situation."

"In Asia, the situation is explosive, and the points of friction are not just Vietnam and Laos, where fighting is going on. Others are Cambodia, Thailand, Malaysia and, of course, Indonesia, where we cannot believe the last word has been said in spite of the destruction of the communist party in that country."

Guevara called for fomenting "intransigent hatred of the enemy that pushes a man beyond natural human limits and makes him an efficient, violent, selective, cold machine for killing."

Score Card of Strategy. Here is how Guevara's strategy is already taking shape, country by country, in Asia:

Burma—Red Chinese advisers in civilian clothes have been slipping across the border to direct an uprising against the Burmese government. They are attempting to units dissident Kashin and Karen rebels under the "White-Flag Communists," an underground organization led by Thakhin Than Tun. His deputy, Thakhin Ba Thein Tin, recently turned up in Peking where he boasted: "Our people's army is active in over 60 per cent of Burma, and we are winning one victory after another."

Cambodia—North Vietnamese troops have infiltrated into Cambodia to bolster the Kmer Serei, as the Cambodian Communists are known. They control two entire provinces and many outlying villages. When Cambodia's Prince Norodom Sihanouk recently softened his anti-American attitude, he received a brutal warning from Peking. In a speech monitored by the U.S., he told his people: "They (the Maoists) threaten us. When verbal threats failed, they decided to foment war in our country. They said: 'If you do not break right away with the Americans, if you do not return to your former policy—that is, the pro-Chinese and pro-Viet Minh satellites—you will have war. If you are going to normalize your relations with the Americans, if you continue to prime their bombs, and if you want to strike a bargain with them, then you will have war with me. You will have to choose between having war with the Americans or having war with me."

India — Communist agitators are stirring up the peasants in West Bengal to revolt against the government. Chinese infiltrators are reported to have made contact with rebellious Naga and Bizo tribesmen in northeastern India. The Chinese also are sowing trouble in the Himalayan border states, which India is obliged by treaty to protect.

Indonesia — Several clashes have been reported in West Borneo between Chinese-led guerrillas and government troops. Meanwhile, Peking's organizers are trying to reorganize the decimated Indonesian Communist party, known there as the P.N.I.

Laos—Despite a 1962 ceasefire agreement, guaranteed by all the big powers, the Pathet Lao communists have gone on the attack again in Laos. Nothing but a bush-league royal army and the threat of American intervention keeps the reds from rolling over Laos. North Vietnam has 40,000 troops in the country, and Peking has brazenly distributed publicity pictures showing soldiers of the "Laotian People's Liberation Army" studying the works of Mao Tse-tung.

The Philippines — The pro-communist Huk, all but stamped out in the 1950's, have staged a comeback in the Philippines. Their leader, Luis Taruc, is still serving a lengthy prison sentence for his guerrilla activities. But his place has now been taken by a relative—Pedro Taruc. Intelligence reports claim the real power, however, is the No. 2 Huk, Faustino Del Mundo, who goes by the romantic name, Commander Sumulong. The Huk have made an alliance with Filipino bandit bands, which prey upon merchants and travelers. Together, the Huk and their armed mercenaries control the great plains of central Luzon all the way to the very gates of Manila.

Thailand — North Vietnam has also sent guerrillas into Thailand to infiltrate areas heavily populated by Thais of Vietnamese descent. The Chinese have also smuggled arms to the guerrillas in South Korea. And in every Asia country, the communist underground is active. Here in Hong Kong the reds roiled in the streets but were battered down by the cool, efficient British. There is no doubt, however, that they are merely waiting to rise again.

The urgent question, which the policymakers in Washington have yet to solve, is how to combat the Guevara strategy.

The World Today

Mills May Exact Steep Price for Travel Tax Support

By EDMOND LEBRETON. Associated Press Writer.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's proposed tax on American travel outside the Western Hemisphere has a big plus behind it that his income tax hike proposal lacks: The support of Rep. Wilbur D. Mills.

But the Arkansas Democrat and chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee—who steers that tax-writing panel according to his own economic views and not necessarily the White House—may exact a price for his support the administration finds steep.

Mills has told associates there is no chance of corraling the House votes to pass a foreign travel bill unless it contains some attractions for members worried about competition that imports pose for products of their districts.

The push in Congress for quotas on imports or other similar devices worries the advocates of international trade with minimum restrictions. This has been the proclaimed goal of U. S. policy from the days of Franklin D.

Roosevelt and Cordell Hull.

Today tariffs have been bargained down until they are relatively insignificant and the United States was believed ready to tackle next the nontariff barriers to trade—quotas, border taxes, export subsidies and the like.

But the chronic U. S. deficit in international payments has strengthened the hand of those advocating protection of U. S. industries in the domestic market. This is true even though the United States has maintained a surplus of exports over imports. The payments deficit resulted from other factors, such as tourist spending, investment abroad and government military and aid outlays.

U. S. Trade Surplus

The administration has promised recommendations to improve the U. S. trade surplus as part of the larger programs for righting the payments balance. Mills has pointedly told the administration to hurry up.

The question now worrying administration strategists is whether Mills will insist on stronger measures than the U. S. trade negotiators would recommend as part of the package with some form of travel tax.

The General Agreement or Tariffs and Trade, to which this country and its principal trading partners give allegiance, sanctions a few kinds of protection devices while banning most.

But if the United States tried to institute border taxes on imports, for instance, it would likely provoke complaints to GATT, which distinguishes among the kinds of taxes to be equalized. The U. S. system, under which an important part of the total tax levy is imposed by states and local subdivisions, is not exactly paralleled elsewhere.

In any case, much the clamor in Congress is for conceivably more drastic measures, such as quotas. Mills himself has introduced a textile quota bill, one of many such measures in behalf of a multitude of industries. Mills has not pushed his quota bill, but it does nothing to diminish his bargaining power with the administration.

Estonia 50th Anniversary

Editor, The Freeman: Estonians have lived on the shores of the Baltic sea some three thousand years. They belong to the Finno-Ugric Group of Nations and are linguistically akin to the Finns.

Estonia was a free country up to the 13th century, then an era of foreign occupation started. In 1918 Estonia and other Baltic States (Latvia and Lithuania) reemerged as independent states after War of Liberation against Soviet Russia.

In Peace Treaties with the three Baltic States Soviet Russia recognized without any reserve the sovereignty and independence of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania and voluntarily and forever renounced all the rights possessed by Russia.

The Western Great Powers extended de jure recognition during 1918-22 and the Baltic States were admitted to the League of Nations.

During the years of independence Estonia and other Baltic States saw an unparalleled surge in all spheres of life. They were prosperous and progressive members of the world community of nations, factors of peace and stability in Europe.

On August 23rd, 1939 the Soviet Russia concluded a "non-aggression pact" with Hitler (Molotov-Ribbentrop pact). According to a secret protocol to the pact Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania were given over to the Soviet "sphere of influence" and in June 1940 large contingents of Soviet troops and tanks poured to the Baltic States and Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania were forcibly occupied and illegally annexed by Soviet Union.

Genocide, terror, indoctrination, economic exploitation—these have been the main features of the Soviet rule in

Timely Quotes

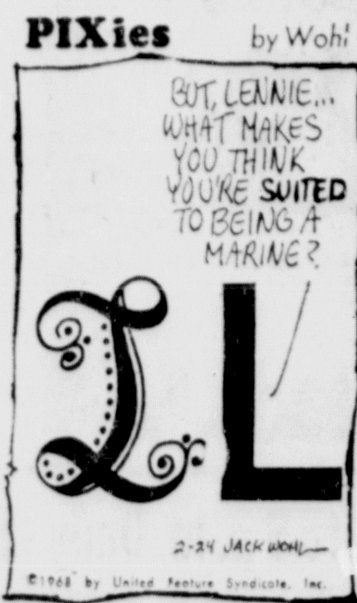

Will all malcontent priests who intend to leave the priesthood and/or the church please do so by March 12, 1968, so that their colleagues and the rest of us can get on with the very serious business of reform and renewal? —Dan Herr, publisher of the "Critic," Catholic laymen's magazine.

Baltic countries. Over one half million Estonians, Latvians and Lithuanians have perished in Soviet concentration camps. The Baltic people are today denied the basic human rights. At a time when western colonialism has all but vanished Soviet Russian colonialism flourishes in Baltic States.

The United States has steadfastly refused to recognize the Soviet annexation of the Baltic States. Estonian, Latvian and Lithuanian diplomatic representatives continue functioning in the United States. Most countries of the free world hold Soviet occupation of the Baltic States illegal. Their stand is based on the principle that the passage of time does not transform an international crime into a legal acceptable situation.

On February 24th, 1968 Estonians all over the free Western World are commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of their independence (1918-1968) and are continuing the struggle for the independence of their homeland and for the freedom of Estonian people from the communist tyranny and from the yoke of Soviet Union.

Draft Boards Open to Public; Hershey Fights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Draft chief Lewis B. Hershey says he probably will fight a court decision requiring disclosure of the addresses of local draft board officials.

Hershey said Friday the Selective Service System likely will ask the Department of Justice to appeal a recent federal court decision requiring that the names, addresses, ages and military background of Local Board 136 in Philadelphia be disclosed.

The Selective Service director said he doesn't object to the court's ruling on names and ages except as it applies to revealing addresses. They should be withheld, he said, because "there are some threats going around the country."

Saying local board members are unpaid citizens who "want to feel that when they get home they're not going to be harassed with phone calls or maybe threatened," Hershey said his home telephone is listed publicly and added:

"I have always felt that being pestered at home was an occupational hazard."

Ford, Johnson Seek Jobs for A Half-Million

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson meets today with industrialist Henry Ford II to plan a government-industry effort to find jobs for 500,000 hard-core unemployed who live in the slums of the nation's 50 biggest cities.

Ford is chairman of the newly formed National Alliance of Businessmen, which will spearhead the three-year drive.

Accompanying Ford to the conference with Johnson were Paul Austin of Atlanta, chief executive officer of the Coca-Cola Co., and former Ford Motor Co. executive Leo Bebee of Washington, D.C. Austin is vice chairman of the alliance, Bebee executive vice chairman.

The Texas White House has labeled as rumors published speculation that Ford might be in line for an important government job in the near future. Sources said the Saturday meeting was strictly to discuss the jobs program.

Draft Boards Open to Public; Hershey Fights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Draft chief Lewis B. Hershey says he probably will fight a court decision requiring disclosure of the addresses of local draft board officials.

Hershey said Friday the Selective Service System likely will ask the Department of Justice to appeal a recent federal court decision requiring that the names, addresses, ages and military background of Local Board 136 in Philadelphia be disclosed.

The Selective Service director said he doesn't object to the court's ruling on names and ages except as it applies to revealing addresses. They should be withheld, he said, because "there are some threats going around the country."

Saying local board members are unpaid citizens who "want to feel that when they get home they're not going to be harassed with phone calls or maybe threatened," Hershey said his home telephone is listed publicly and added: "I have always felt that being posted at home was an occupational hazard."

Ford, Johnson Seek Jobs for A Half-Million

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson meets today with industrialist Henry Ford II to plan a government-industry effort to find jobs for 500,000 hard-core unemployed who live in the slums of the nation's 50 biggest cities.

Ford is chairman of the newly formed National Alliance of Businessmen, which will spearhead the three-year drive.

Accompanying Ford to the conference with Johnson were Paul Austin of Atlanta, chief executive officer of the Coca-Cola Co., and former Ford Motor Co. executive Leo Bebee of Washington, D.C. Austin is vice chairman of the alliance, Bebee executive vice chairman.

The Texas White House has labeled as rumors published speculation that Ford might be in line for an important government job in the near future. Sources said the Saturday meeting was strictly to discuss the jobs program.

Israelis Portray A Sense of Humor

JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — In dressing, it appears that women don't worry about looking funny anymore. They are sure that in somebody's critical eyes they do. They only wonder whether or not they look funny fashionably.

After all, the fashion industry around the world it just one big put-on these days, and getting dressed for any event is just one big costume ball.

Maybe this is because men laugh at a woman's fashions anyway, whatever they are, and therefore she might as well have the fun of playing games with clothes. Maybe costumes are a way of escaping the grimness of reality by play-acting another role.

At any rate, the Israeli fashion designers have joined in the for-laughs game, even though there was not much to laugh about in their part of the world a half-year ago. Their sense of humor exploded all over their winter collection show readied for buyers from over 20 countries.

What is your Walter Mitty dream? To be a sexy siren of the '30s? A soft-shoe tap dancer? A pre-revolutionary Natasha? A Civil War Belle? A Bonnie and Clyde? A member of a harem? A baby doll or a grandmother? The Israeli ready-to-wear market has garments for all.

Some Sensible Styles

Very often the styles are so sensible and restrained that nobody would crack a single smile, if it were not for accessories. That is also true of clothes designed by very good American and French designers.

Photographers and models do their best to contribute to the humorous side of fashions, too. Italian fashion manikins used to be comedienne before the cameras. However, in recent years they have reverted to aloof disdainful poses of sophistication. Now the Israeli misses have taken up where they left off, clowning like clowns for their smile-happy, picture-snapping bosses.

The fact remains that a few inhibited people still exist, women who don't want to play games with fashion, or women who just want to play the role of a beautifully garbed, understated woman. For all the laughter in fashion, there are styles for her, too.

The word from Israel is that there is less of the uncompromisingly straight line to dresses and skirts have more of a tendency to follow curves. Despucculottes and trousers, the emphasis is on femininity and frivolity.

Celery seeds and dry mustard are excellent additions for an oil-and-vinegar dressing that is to be served with fruit salad.

Some good cooks like to add a suspicion of sugar to their pastry for dessert pies.

Betrothals Announced

Mrs. Nina Rinschler of Hempstead and formerly of Kingston, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Caroline Edith, to Kenneth R. Engel, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Engel of North Massapequa. Miss Rinschler is also the daughter of the late Charles Rinschler.

She is now on the staff of Elwyn Institute, Elwyn, Pa., as clinical psychologist.

Rignall is a graduate of Governor Dummer Academy,

South Byfield, Mass. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Haverford College and did graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania. He was graduated from the Army Defense Information School at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, and is now a student at the Defense Language Institute at Monterey, Calif.

A September wedding is planned.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael A. Mauro of Route 4, Saugerties, announce the engagement of their daughter, Michele F. Mauro, to SF Frank H. Simpson, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Simpson, 411 Albany Avenue, Kingston.

The bride-elect, a graduate of Saugerties High School, is employed as a secretary for Ulster County Planning Board. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Julia T. Mauro of Route 4, Saugerties, and Mr. and Mrs. G. DeLeonardis of Brooklyn.

Her fiancé, an alumnus of New York Military Academy, Cornwall, attended Dutchess Community College. He enlisted in the U.S. Navy in May 1967 and is presently serving aboard the USS Fulton at New London, Conn. He is the grandson of Mrs. Alexander Guido of Kingston and the late Alexander Guido, and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey E. Simpson of Lake Park, Fla., and Mt. Marion.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hopp, 122 Hurley Avenue, Kingston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Frieda, to Douglas A. Constant, son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Constant, 84 Main Street, Rosendale.

Miss Hopp is a graduate of Kingston High School. Her fiancé, an alumnus of Rondout Valley Central School, received his AAS degree from Ulster County Community College. He is now employed by Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp., Poughkeepsie.

Israelis Portray A Sense of Humor

JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — In dressing, it appears that women don't worry about looking funny anymore. They are sure that in somebody's critical eyes they do. They only wonder whether or not they look funny fashionably.

After all, the fashion industry around the world it just one big put-on these days, and getting dressed for any event is just one big costume ball.

Maybe this is because men laugh at a woman's fashions anyway, whatever they are, and therefore she might as well have the fun of playing games with clothes. Maybe costumes are a way of escaping the grimness of reality by play-acting another role.

At any rate, the Israeli fashion designers have joined in the for-laughs game, even though there was not much to laugh about in their part of the world a half-year ago. Their sense of humor exploded all over their winter collection show readied for buyers from over 20 countries.

What is your Walter Mitty dream? To be a sexy siren of the '30s? A soft-shoe tap dancer? A pre-revolutionary Natasha? A Civil War Belle? A Bonnie and Clyde? A member of a harem? A baby doll or a grandmother? The Israeli ready-to-wear market has garments for all.

Some Sensible Styles

Very often the styles are so sensible and restrained that nobody would crack a single smile, if it were not for accessories. That is also true of clothes designed by very good American and French designers.

Photographers and models do their best to contribute to the humorous side of fashions, too. Italian fashion manikins used to be comedienne before the cameras. However, in recent years they have reverted to aloof disdainful poses of sophistication. Now the Israeli misses have taken up where they left off, clowning like clowns for their smile-happy, picture-snapping bosses.

The fact remains that a few inhibited people still exist, women who don't want to play games with fashion, or women who just want to play the role of a beautifully garbed, understated woman. For all the laughter in fashion, there are styles for her, too.

The word from Israel is that there is less of the uncompromisingly straight line to dresses and skirts have more of a tendency to follow curves. Despite culottes and trousers, the emphasis is on femininity and frivolity.

Celery seeds and dry mustard are excellent additions for an oil-and-vinegar dressing that is to be served with fruit salad.

Some good cooks like to add a suspicion of sugar to their pastry for dessert pies.

Betrothals Announced

Mrs. Nina Rinschler of Hempstead and formerly of Kingston, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Caroline Edith, to Kenneth R. Engel, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Engel of North Massapequa. Miss Rinschler is also the daughter of the late Charles Rinschler.

Although Landa's outfit doesn't have one stickout like Ulster's Joe Uhl, any of the seven he uses can bust a game wide open.

The two blemishes on Mercer's mark came in close games. The first loss came against Seton Hall's freshmen. The margin was five, 87-82. Last weekend, the undefeated Duquesne frosh took a 74-65 decision. Mercer lost a key player on fouls with the score tied 61-61 and two minutes left.

Among teams considered for the vacant spots are Fashion Institute, Sullivan, Orange, Wesley (Del.), L. I. Aggies, Baltimore, York, Pa.; Brandywine, Md. and Johnstown, Pa.

Dear Abby

Home Buyer Needs Advice

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(c) 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y.
No Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: There is an elderly gentleman who lives on the same street where my married daughter lives. She knows him only by sight, and I understand that he is in very poor health and is rather an unfriendly person.

I won't go into details here, but I would like very much to buy his house after he passes away. I hear he plans to live there until he dies. I know that another party is also eyeing his house. How can I be sure I will be first in line to get it?

Should I go there, introduce myself, and make him an offer? I really want that house and I don't want to spoil my chances.

THINKING AHEAD
DEAR THINKING: The idea of approaching an elderly, ailing, "unfriendly" home owner with an offer to buy his home is for the birds. (The vultures.) Ask your lawyer, banker, or a real estate dealer to negotiate for you.

DEAR ABBY: The lady who signed herself "FLAT IN BACK" and wanted to know where she could find a foam rubber fanny is lucky. She has all her problems behind her.

Those forward-looking engineers in the foundation industry seem to have dedicated themselves to the proposition that "it's what's up front that counts."

Not so. A few years back, several manufacturers came out with a "false diemere." (One such item, appropriately named "FANCY THAT," is still on the market.)

I won't say that the demand for such an item hit bottom, but almost no one makes them anymore. So it would seem that these "bras" for the fanny were a bust.

Sincerely,
WILLIAM B. GLEESON,
(Powers, Knollwood, Hopkins, Minn.)

DEAR ABBY: Our cat is to have kittens. My wife and I disagree on whether our boy, age 4 years and 5 months, should witness this event.

We consider the child to be above average in intelligence and reasonably well-adjusted. He has already asked where babies come from. We would appreciate your opinion.

MR. AND MRS. M.: I see no reason why the boy should not witness this event. One picture is worth 10,000 words.

DEAR ABBY: My family and I were invited to the home of a friend we had known for many years.

On our last visit for dinner our hostess prepared a colorful (but highly inedible) buffet of Jewish dishes, none of which we had ever eaten in our home.

This included bagels, lox, smoked sturgeon, pickled herring, chopped liver, sliced tomatoes, creamed cottage cheese, jellied tuna, sour cream, pickles and loikes. Also kichel and strudel for dessert.

When I was invited to the buffet table I blurted out, "There is nothing here I can eat."

I have weak kidneys from a scarlet fever attack in my earlier years and I can't eat spicy foods.

Was my remark rude? Or should I have tried to make a meal out of sliced tomatoes and bagels?

HUNGRY GUEST
DEAR GUEST: Your remark was rude. You should have eaten what you were able to, and said nothing.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For a Personal Reply, inclose a for All Occasions."

Horoscope By SYDNEY OMARR It's In The Stars —

("The wise man controls his destiny... astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19):

Some friends may ask you to prove your intentions. Key is to draw line between graciousness and foolishness. See people, situations in realistic light. Wish can be fulfilled.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20):

Fine for getting together with one who directs your professional activities. Gift or special form of appreciation is in order.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20):

Long journeys, visits are favored. Pleasure indicated through calls, messages. Give of yourself. Say what you mean—mean what you say. Then day glows for you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22):

Your desire to solve mystery is heightened. Day to seek spiritual awareness. Find out who you are, where you're going. Means get in touch with yourself. Throw off pretense.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22):

Surprise in form of gift or expression of gratitude comes your way. Involved is mate, partner, close associate. Today you gain spiritually if aware. Express true feelings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22):

News of relative who embarks upon journey is spotlighted. Day features movement, possible confusion. Time to get thoughts organized. Interpret pattern of recent events, actions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):

Favorable lunar aspect today coincides with chance for expression of love. Give and receive affection. Pleasure indicated through favorite subject, hobby. You can radiate joy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21):

The pace you set is important. Should be steady, but allow enough time to be thorough. Emphasis on home, base of operations. Older individual demands attention.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21):

Short trip connected with relatives indicated today. Messages, calls are also on the agenda. Agreement within family circle occurs. You are happier.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19):

Money, what you possess and how to obtain goods emphasized. Find out what you need, what is merely desired. Head words of spiritual adviser.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18):

You may learn of extra chores, added responsibility. But rewards, satisfaction are also featured. Take special care with personal appearance. Could be very special time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20):

Attend lecture, special service—look within for answers. Day to heighten spiritual awareness. Individual from your past could make reappearance. Generally a favorable time.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are perceptive, desire perfection and are attracted to science. Change of residence could be on horizon.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: News features the bringing of luxury items closer to reach of more persons.

(To find out more about yourself and astrology, order Sydney Omarr's 50-page booklet, "The Truth About Astrology." Send 50 cents to Omarr Booklet, Kingston Freeman, Box 3240, Grand Central Station, New York, N. Y. 10017.)

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, February 26, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19):

Get down to business of communicating ideas, desires. Utilize your excellent contacts. Don't wait for others to make suggestions. Be a self-starter; accept responsibility.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20):

Avoid tendency to be fixed in your ways. A little versatility today can go a long way. Special honor could come your way. Excellent for reward, asking for greater compensation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20):

Favorable lunar aspect today coincides with journeys, communications, overall philosophy. You make decisions which affect long-range plans, policies. That news will arrive tonight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22):

Your hunch pays off. Follow through. Share knowledge. Learn by teaching. One who asks for help ends by aiding you. Legacies, other people's money figure prominently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22):

Emphasis on public relations—people want additional information concerning your activities. Be prepared. Exhibit sense of humor. Engage in social activity tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22):

Attend to chores at home, especially repairs. Check safety devices. Be alert getting in and out of tub. Accidents avoided if you are not careless. Show appreciation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):

Communication from loved one proves significant. Be willing to make changes. Evening highlights romance, rediscovery of youthful excitement. Active, vital day is on tap.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21):

Talkative person dominates scene today. Your patience is tried—but if you are patient the result is beneficial. Realize this. Respond accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21):

Accent on messages, ideas, urges and how you respond. Be versatile without scattering force. Be optimistic without fooling yourself. Test your own sense of fitness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19):

Sense of responsibility comes to fore. Money, power, authority are highlighted. In personal relations a decision is necessary. Could involve marriage, children, business.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18):

Cycle high. Lunar position emphasizes independence, self-starting attitude. Be confident. State needs, views. Push forth to new starts in new directions. Break with past.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20):

If you love a mystery, you get to solve one today. Best way is to take new tack. Obtain solid hint from AQUARIUS message. Don't be a prisoner of past methods. Modernize procedures.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you would make fine executive. Some think you are too serious. But the fact is that is that you are determined to carry through on promises. You are the type who makes dreams turn to realities. Go to it.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: New emphasis on outer space. (To find out more about yourself and astrology, order Sydney Omarr's 50-page booklet, "The Truth About Astrology." Send 50 cents to Omarr Booklet, Kingston Freeman, Box 3240, Grand Central Station, New York, N. Y. 10017.)

Bridge

Here's the Way It Really Was

By Oswald and James Jacoby suit was a trifle silly and gave one less spade.

In the hand as shown today if West opens the king or queen of diamonds, South will have to go down.

West opened a trump and South proceeded to make the hand by cashing two clubs, ruffing a club, drawing trumps, cashing his ace and king of spades and playing the rest of his trumps. He held the jack of spades and ace-jack of diamonds as the last three cards in dummy and West, who had to discard before dummy, could not hang onto the queen of spades and king-queen of diamonds.

Several hundred readers pointed out to us that the squeeze was beautiful but unnecessary.

In the hand as shown on Nov. 30 North only held three spades. South could discard one of those three spades on a high club and then ruff out his six of spades and nine of clubs.

These readers were very familiar to you, it should be charitable. Most of them said appeared Nov. 30 except that they liked our column and were pleased to see that we made mistakes just as they did.

We have tried to get personal the one actually played but replies to all of them. If we when we finished writing it up missed anyone we hope that we decided that North's three will accept this column as our diamond response with six high apology.

palliate (PAL-ee-ate) to lessen; to reduce. After he had severely burned his hand on the hot stove, the elderly man rubbed an ointment on his skin to palliate the pain. The smooth-talking traveling salesman, a man who claimed he had certain tonics which could palliate all ailments, was demonstrating his product to an unsuspecting audience. After his attractive fiancée had left him to marry the stock car driver, the young man, trying to palliate his loss, began to drink excessively.

Quick Quiz

Q — Can scientists predict earthquakes?

A — Seismologists generally agree that at present there is no means of reliably predicting an earthquake anywhere. More than a million occur every year.

Q — What tree has three distinct types of leaves?

A — The sassafras tree. All three different types of leaves may be found on the same sassafras tree, on the same twig, and even at the same time.

Q — Can any of the asteroids be seen with the naked eye?

A — The only one that ever becomes bright enough is Vesta, the third largest in size.

Dear Abby

Home Buyer Needs Advice

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: There is an elderly gentleman who lives on the same street where my married daughter lives. She knows him only by sight, and I understand that he is in very poor health and is rather an unfriendly person.

I won't go into details here, but I would like very much to buy his house after he passes away. I hear he plans to live there until he dies. I know that another party is also eyeing his house. How can I be sure I will be first in line to get it?

Should I go there, introduce myself, and make him an offer? I really want that house and I don't want to spoil my chances.

THINKING AHEAD

DEAR THINKING: The idea of approaching an elderly, ailing, "unfriendly" home owner with an offer to buy his home is for the birds. (The vultures.) Ask your lawyer, banker, or a real estate dealer to negotiate for you.

DEAR ABBY: The lady who signed herself "FLAT BACK" and wanted to know where she could find a foam rubber fanny is lucky. She has all her problems behind her.

Those forward-looking engineers in the foundation industry seem to have dedicated themselves to the proposition that "it's what's up front that counts."

Not so. A few years back, several manufacturers came out with a "false derrière." (One such item, appropriately named "FANCY THAT," is still on the market.)

I won't say that the demand for such an item hit bottom, but almost no one makes them anymore. So it would seem that these "bras" for the fanny were a bust.

mark was rude. You should stamped, self-addressed envelope, have eaten what you were able to, and said nothing.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069, for Abby's For a personal reply, inclose a for All Occasions."

Star Trek: All Systems Go

Chicago Daily News Service network executives feel I Spy has that faded look. The three networks are now showing tentative schedules for the 1968-69 season to advertising agencies and the final slates should be firm within two weeks. NBC, which has slated a seventh night of movies on Monday night, is expected to cancel the Danny Thomas Hour and Run For Your Life. The Monkees, Tarzan and I Dream of Jeannie are in a doubtful category. The entire CBS schedule has been disclosed by advertising agency sources in New York. By omission, it appeared that Good Morning Hollywood, Lost in Space, He & She and Cimarron Strip have been dumped. The Jonathan Winters Show, which began Dec. 27, has been doing only fair in the latest ratings and is iffy. New Programs shown on the tentative CBS slate are: Doris Day Show, with Miss Day playing a widow with two children who returns from a big city to the small town of her birth; The Good Guys, starring Bob Denver as a cab driver and Herbert Edelman, who runs a diner; Lancer, an 1870s western about two half-brothers, one brought up in the west and the other raised in the east. Also: Blondie, a comedy based on the comic strip, with Will Hutchins and Pat Hardy; Hawaii 50, a lawman series centered in Hawaii with Jack Lord and Lew Ayres, and Mayberry R.F.D., with Ken Berry, an extension of the Andy Griffith Show. Griffith is retiring from TV but will make guest appearances on Mayberry. ABC appears ready to slice Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea; Off to See the Wizard, Rat Patrol, The Invaders and Cowboy in Africa. Batman already is dead. Felony Squad and Second Hundred Years are iffy. The Avengers apparently has a good chance to be renewed. Ordinarily I would make more fuss about this prospect, but I don't want to alarm the networks.

Star Trek: All Systems Go

Chicago Daily News Service
Star Trek, the science fiction series that has attracted a very vocal audience, has been renewed for next season on NBC. A network spokesman said the series will be moved from its present 7:30 p. m. Friday period to another night and probably at an earlier hour. However, it looks now as if I Spy, the 4-year-old adventure series with Bill Cosby and Robert Culp, will be canceled. Like the Man From Uncle, which already has been axed, network executives feel I Spy has that faded look.

The three networks are now showing tentative schedules for the 1968-69 season to advertising agencies and the final slates should be firm within two weeks.

NBC, which has slated a seventh night of movies on Monday night, is expected to cancel the Danny Thomas Hour and Run for Your Life. The Monkees, Tarzan and I Dream of Jeannie are in a doubtful category.

The entire CBS schedule has been disclosed by advertising agency sources in New York. By omission, it appeared that Good Morning World, Lost in Space, He & She and Cimarron Strip have been dumped.

Leslie Howard insists that it once happened in a London theater where he was getting experience in repertory. The company put on different shows every night and sometimes two different shows a day. This was most confusing to the cast.

One afternoon Howard forgot his lines and rushed backstage to the company director.

Leslie Howard—Quick, what's my line?

Mr. Hill (the director)—Quick, what's the play?

Nixon, Romney Have Same Theme

World War III is becoming a recurring theme in the campaign speeches of Richard M. Nixon and his principal rival for the Republican presidential nomination, Gov. George Romney of Michigan.

At opposite ends of the nation Friday the two GOP front-runners raised the specter of the United States drifting into a major global conflict.

In Portsmouth, N.H., where he was fielding questions telephoned to a radio program, Nixon said:

"It is my belief that in the term of the next president the United States will face its greatest danger, insofar as a world war is concerned, since World War II. Because in the next taking us down the road of fulfillment of the next president the danger."

Soviet Union will acquire nuclear parity with the United States and the Chinese Communists will acquire a substantial nuclear capability."

Worrying Aloud

Romney took a break from his campaign for the March 12 New Hampshire primary to do some early spadework in Oregon, which has a primary May 28. He too, was worrying aloud about a big war looming in the years ahead.

Further escalation of the Vietnam war could bring on World War III, he told a GOP gathering in Lincoln, City, Ore.

"You can't win a political guerilla war by overemphasizing danger, insofar as a world war is concerned," Romney said. "The administration is taking us down the road of fulfillment of the next president the danger."

OUT ON BAIL — H. Rap Brown, under $100,000 bail, is shown as he leaves the Miami International Airport for Dade County jail, where he will spend the night prior to going to New Orleans, where he was arrested earlier on a warrant limiting travel. A Federal judge in Richmond, Va. had earlier ordered Brown to pay $10,000 bond which he had violated by leaving the Southern District of New York. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Lack Bail, Go to Jail In T-Way Dope Case

Apprehended on the State Thruway in the Town of Saugerties, and charged with criminal possession of dangerous drugs, three men and an 18-year-old girl from Massachusetts, were granted adjournments Friday afternoon at arraignment before Ulster Town Justice Sherwood E. Davis.

Unable to post bail of $5,000 cash or $10,000 property bond, they were remanded to the county jail until 1:30 p. m., March 1, when the preliminary examination is scheduled.

Defendants are: Gerald Michael Sullivan, 18, of Concord, Mass., reportedly a nephew of a professor at State University College in New Paltz; Charles Lawrence Mason Jr., 26, of Northboro, Mass.; Marjorie Ann Hotz, 20, of Chestnut Hills, Mass.; and Gregory Howard Sweigert, 18, of 25 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

They were taken into custody at 1:15 a. m., Friday, by State Trooper John Turk, who ordered Sullivan to stop the 1965 station wagon after he noticed it was taking an unsteady course along the superhighway.

At arraignment on the drug charges, Sullivan faced a summons issued by Turk charging the youth with changing lanes unsafely in violation of Thruway rules and regulations. Sullivan pleaded innocent.

Judge Davis entered pleas of innocent for all four defendants when it was indicated that three were endeavoring to obtain counsel. Sullivan appeared in court with Attorney Edward T. Feeney.

The information filed against the four charged them jointly with possessing a narcotic drug consisting of one ounce or more ounces containing any of the alkaloids and or salts of heroin, one ounce or more containing cannabis, and two or more ounces containing raw or prepared opium, to wit, the defendants had in their possession, salts of heroin in four packets, a plastic sack containing cannabis in weight exceeding one pound, and prepared opium in a Saccets container in weight exceeding one ounce.

The defendants appeared before Judge Davis at Lake Katrine Grange Hall handcuffed and in custody of Troopers Turk and Robert Malloy and John A. Salters and Fred Grunewald of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation. The three young men appeared of the Hippie type, with long, straggly hair and sideboards below the ears. They were attired in jail garb of blue denim.

Ulster Academy, Benedictine Nursing School Negotiations

By JEAN F. DOLAN

The Freeman learned today that negotiations are under way between Ulster Academy and Benedictine Hospital for rental of school of nursing facilities as a site for the new school.

The co-educational school offering an academic program is slated to open in September, 1968, and search for a suitable location has been the concern of the board of trustees for some time.

According to Headmaster Raymond A. Nelson, the Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing offer an ideal location with excellent classroom facilities. He said the board of trustees are most enthusiastic about the site.

Some time ago Benedictine Hospital announced an end to its nurses training school.

Discussion of details have been underway for some time with Sister Mary Charles, hospital administrator, Gerard H. Nocton, assistant administrator and members of the Academy.

my site selection committee. The catalogue outlining the full program and costs is now available at the Academy office, 17 Pearl Street. The next in a series of admissions tests will be administered at the office March 2.

It is expected formal announcement will be forthcoming early in March when legal details have been worked out. The school will offer a full program of courses and activities for grades seven through 10 in its first year, expanding to 11th and 12th grades later. Dedicated to academic excellence, the new Ulster Academy had its beginnings in the late fall of 1966 and has been steadily progressing since that time.

One of the Great Historical Finds

A country home in Dorset, Vt., has yielded a major cache of original letters from George Washington and other important figures of the Revolutionary War period.

Union College in Schenectady, N.Y., which announced the find this week, said 11 of the Washington letters had never been published in any form, while others varied from previously published versions.

The entire collection, which includes 51 letters from Washington among its 87 items, is now in the Schaffer Library at Union, which has custody of the papers.

The existence of the letters and documents was discovered by Dr. Codman Hislop, Research Professor of American Civilization at Union. The owner of the papers, John L. Hawkes of Dorset, had asked the professor to select something from the Hawkes "family papers" for a Washington's birthday exhibit at the Dorset grammar school.

20th Century Find

Life Magazine, in its current (Feb. 23) issue, calls the accidental discovery "one of the great finds of the present century."

An exhibit of the documents will open March 9 with a meeting and display for a group of American historians. Following that session the papers will be on public display in Schaffer Library.

The bulk of the material, now known as the W. Wright Hawkes Collection of Revolutionary War Documents, consists of letters and other papers relating to the military career of Maj. Gen. Alexander McDougall, the great-grandfather of the present owner.

McDougall, a prominent New York merchant, was at various times captain of a privateer during the French and Indian war, a prisoner convicted of anti-British agitation, commander of American troops in the lower Hudson Valley, and founder of the Bank of New York. He died in 1786, at the age of 55.

The list of signatures in the Hawkes Collection is a veritable who-was-who of the Revolutionary period. It includes John Adams, Benedict Arnold, George Clinton, Ben Franklin, Nathaniel Greene, Alexander Hamilton, John Hancock, John Jay, Thaddeus Kosciuszko, Charles Lee, Israel Putnam, Edmund Randolph, and Philip Schuyler, in addition to Washington.

Early Hamilton Letter

Hamilton is represented by a previously unknown letter, the second earliest yet discovered. The letter, written while he was a student, apologizes for Hamilton's failure to return some borrowed books, which had been stolen from his room at King's College, now Columbia.

The 51 letters from Washington, among them 10 written from the Continental Army's winter quarters at Valley Forge, deal mostly with military matters.

Discovery of the papers brought to light a document often sought by historians but never found, the letter which gave Washington his first hint of Benedict Arnold's treason.

The letter, lost since 1780, was written by Lt. Col. John Jameson of the 2nd Light Dragoons, following the capture of one "John Anderson" near Tarrytown, N.Y., on Sept. 23, 1780. "Anderson" was in reality Maj. John Andre, the British officer negotiating with Arnold.

Jameson's letter transmitted a packet of papers found in Andre's stocking. Included in the papers were plans of the American fortifications at West Point, which perhaps prompted Jameson's observation that the papers were "of a most dangerous tendency."

Police Lab Helped

The documents section of the New York State Police Laboratory assisted the Schaffer Library in efforts to read some illegible portions of the Jameson letter. The letter, which is now being investigated by Prof. Hislop, apparently came into the Hawkes Collection via Lt. Col. John Lawrence, McDougall's son-in-law and the judge advocate at Andre's military trial as a spy. Lawrence was the great-grandfather of John Lawrence Hawkes, the present owner of the papers.

Mr. Hawkes said he took possession of the papers in 1958, when his mother gave him a dilapidated suitcase full of "family papers" from the Hawkes home on Long Island. He later sorted them and found, in addition to the usual family memorabilia, a number of pieces dating from the Revolution. Some had been catalogued by his grandfather, W. Wright Hawkes, who once planned to do a biography of Gen. McDougall.

GEORGE WANTED VISITORS IDENTIFIED — This letter, written by George Washington and previously unknown, was penned in his own hand to Alexander McDougall. Dated at Cambridge, Mass., in Nov. of 1775, it emphasizes the value of writing letters of introduction to accompany visitors. Says the text: "Sir, Having been favoured with your Letter of the 23d. Ult. by Mr. Ray, permit me to assure you, that I shall, at all times, esteem it a happiness to have it in my power to shew Civility to any Gentlemen of your recommendation — It is exceedingly necessary for every person, appearing in the character of a Gentleman, & not personally known, to bring Letters of Introduction from those that are, otherwise, a proper attention cannot be paid to them. Indeed even common Civilities may be injudiciously bestowed as we have some improper visitors — I am with great esteem & regard Sir, Yr. Most Obed. Hble Servt. Go: Washington."

The grandfather had apparently held back a choice selection when he gave the New York Historical Society a collection of Gen. McDougall's papers in 1870. Another gift of papers went to the society in 1940, upon the death of a son, R. Forbes Hawkes, the father of John L. Hawkes. Not included in this second gift were the items in a suitcase, thought to contain only business papers of another member of the family. That suitcase subsequently yielded of Washington's writings, who the latest group of Revolutionary had borrowed some of them more than a century ago.

Was He Wrong?

Mr Hawkes later decided that his initial assumption was wrong, and that the letters were originals. He spoke to some academic friends "about the care of some Revolutionary letters and papers."

"No one seemed interested," he said.

Paltz Concert--A Media Mix

A program being planned for New Paltz this coming Monday evening will touch all bases with a media mix of music and art.

Art works by faculty members will serve as background decor to provide visual stimulation and a cultural atmosphere for a music concert incorporating electronic, traditional and avant garde. The concert, which will present both contemporary and baroque music will be held in the Art Gallery of the State University College at Paltz on Monday, Feb. 26 at 8:30 p.m.

By presenting modern electronic and avant garde music, along with the classics, performers feel an interesting program will be provided in terms of composers as well as the performing mediums. The art show against which the concert will be set has been planned to show a similar diversity in approach. All works will be by members of the college art faculty and are part of the annual faculty exhibit.

As for the concert itself, short pieces by Purcell will contrast with lesser known works of the American composers Pleskow and Etler, and those of Stravinsky and Prokofiev, whose brilliant quartet for winds and strings will close the concert.

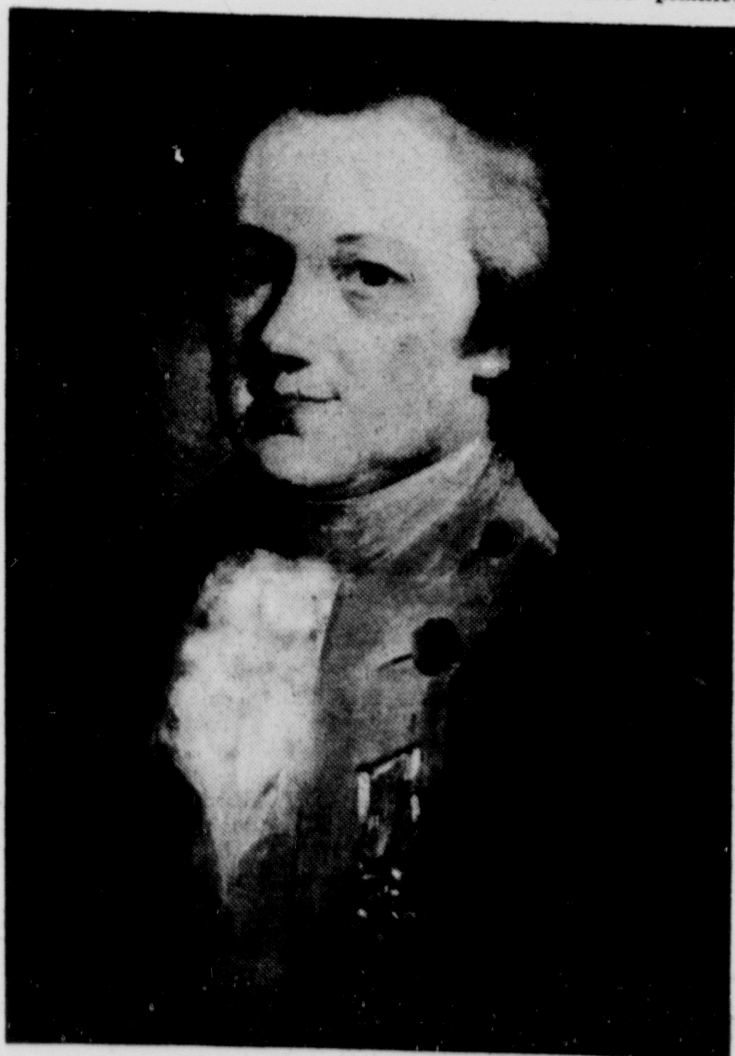

One of the highlights will be the playing of a composition for electronic tape, played and discussed by composer Pril Smiley. A composition graduate of Bennington College, she has been on the staff of the Columbia-Princeton Electronic Laboratory and the Vivian Beaumont Theatre of Lincoln Center. Her composition "Eclipse" received its premiere performance at the Contemporary Music Concert at Columbia in December.

Two superb guest artists and three Paltz faculty members will comprise the chamber music group for Monday. Linda Briod, a first violinist of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, has been heard previously in numerous chamber concerts at the college. Martin Sperber, first oboist of the HVP, who has played throughout the East, and Peter Alexander, who came to Paltz in 1967, will also represent the music faculty.

Guest artist Kenneth Fricker, former assistant principal bass player with the American Symphony under Leopold Stodowski, comes to the concert from his position as present principal bass player with the HVP. Rudolf Efram, Philharmonic violist, has also played with the Detroit and San Francisco symphonies.

Monday evening's program will be in two parts. Prior to intermission, the quintet will offer music by Purcell, Pleskow and Etler, and the Smiley electronic tape will be played. After a recess, the quintet will return to play music by Stravinsky and Prokofiev.

Before Streetcars Clanged This Was the Tow Path That Was

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

It has not been immortalized in song and legend to quite the same extent as the Erie. The nomenclature of its boats is not remembered, perhaps, as well as the names of those which became famous on the Chesapeake and Ohio. Packets with their narrow rigid board bunks and festive travelers did not ply its waters in the same numbers and with the same persistence as they did on those to the north and west of here.

But it was colorful and unique in its own right and the saga of its coming, its duration and its demise will live forever in history. For babies were born on it and grew up beside it. People died because of it—workmen who helped build it, those lost in accidental wrecks and premeditated rammings, the hapless child drivers of towpath teams who became entangled in the ropes and were dragged and battered beyond recognition. And the untold and sometimes uncounted drowning victims—children who swam in it and adults, made unsway by rum, who wandered off its banks—banks which only in rare instances boasted guard rails.

Still, even though its Irish captains were famous for their brawling, and many another boatman was involved in a good fistfight on occasion (or a verbal one noted for cursing), its moral tone was far different from that of the Erie, the Union and others. It was unique among all others of its type because it was a strict Sabbath-keeping organization. At midnight between Saturday and Sunday, its locks were closed, and nothing in heaven or on earth could produce an event that would cause their operation again until Monday morning.

Applejack and Rum

Old-time missionaries who had their hands full on other waterways of the type, insisted the men here were somewhat quieter and better behaved than their colleagues in the profession. Even when as many as 50 boats found themselves spending Sunday at the some mooring, the rum and applejack, it was said, did not flow as freely and the broken heads were not so much in evidence as elsewhere in the trade. At least, so said the missionaries. The newspapers of the era, however, indicate that the mixture of alcohol, music, roistering and flaming Auld Sod and New Country tempers often resulted in explosive scenes. Small wonder when rum was as cheap as water (three cents for a glass; six cents for a half pint) and applejack sold for a quarter a gallon.

It was, in the final analysis, an irrespressible and irreplaceable marvel, and it appealed alike to hard-drinking, hard-fighting men and to Sunday school excursionists.

Regrettably, only a few ruined remnants remain today to give a glimpse of its greatness. Here in Ulster County, where it could be said to have both began and culminated, only those totally aware of and interested in early history are informed enough to point out its vestiges. What was once a busy water passage is now sometimes nothing more than the faintest indication of an embankment or shallow depression, choked with weeds and undergrowth, but with a vague hint of some sort of one-time regularity.

To a family out on a Sunday walk, a hiking couple, or a band of children off on an exploring adventure, falls the wonder of seeing these inconspicuous remains and realizing that something once wended its way here. A few ruined stores, dilapidated tender's houses and abandoned taverns of the era still stand, but most have been replaced by modern day hotels (Ellenville's Nevele Country Club for one) and other enterprises. Eroded towpaths are difficult to define—and where boats once cut water, city streets and state highways such as (Route 52) have been built.

Now Garbage Strewn

A hiker's boot may leave a bit of crumbling wall; his eye may spot a shred of decaying timber or a piece of rusting iron. A weed-grown lock (there were many at Kerhonkson, High Falls, Eddyville and elsewhere,) a ruined gate-house, a once proud aqueduct—cluttered now with Budweiser and dog food cans, milk cartons, cereal and detergent boxes, and other garbage—this is all that is left today of the far-famed towpath that was. This was the waterway that aroused the pride of citizens for miles around for almost a century—the venerable and august Delaware and Hudson Canal.

The D & H owed its proposal, building and eventual burgeoning life to the discovery of coal in northeastern Pennsylvania in the early 19th Century. Anthracite was the lifeblood of the vein that was the D & H and its coronary death knell was sounded only by the coming of the railroads.

William Wurts was a to-the-manor born Pennsylvania merchant when he bought a few lumps of coal, then being sold as novelty "black stones." But he knew he had stumbled on something big and, with his brother, Maurice, took off on an exploring trip to find more. Roughing it through dense forests and precipitous mountains, they found their new coal lands, took options on several large tracts, and went into the mining business.

There was, however, a seemingly insurmountable transportation problem. How to carry the coal over the mountains to Philadelphia? True, it could be sledded over rocky terrains in winter and rafted down turbulent rivers, but the process was slow and the losses great. Why not think in terms of New York City as a market rather than Philadelphia? The same problem—no highway of transportation... unless... impossible dream... a canal could be cut from the Delaware River to the Hudson River.

Racked by Hone

Climbing onto the coattails of the Erie, which Americans were taking to their hearts and supporting with enthusiasm, the Wurts brothers found backers, including the scholarly capitalist, Philip Hone, and others from Orange and Sullivan Counties.

A team of Erie engineers was hired to survey the Hudson River at the mouth of Rondout Creek, up along the Rondout trough and that of the Neversink River to where it met the Delaware and on to the Lackawaxen. Concluded the engineers: a canal was possible but it would cost more than a million dollars.

It would be worth it, said the brothers. New York City alone would need thousands upon thousands of tons of coal a year, and other towns along the Hudson could be expected to switch from burning wood to anthracite. Plans proceeded full steam ahead, so to speak, beginning in 1824.

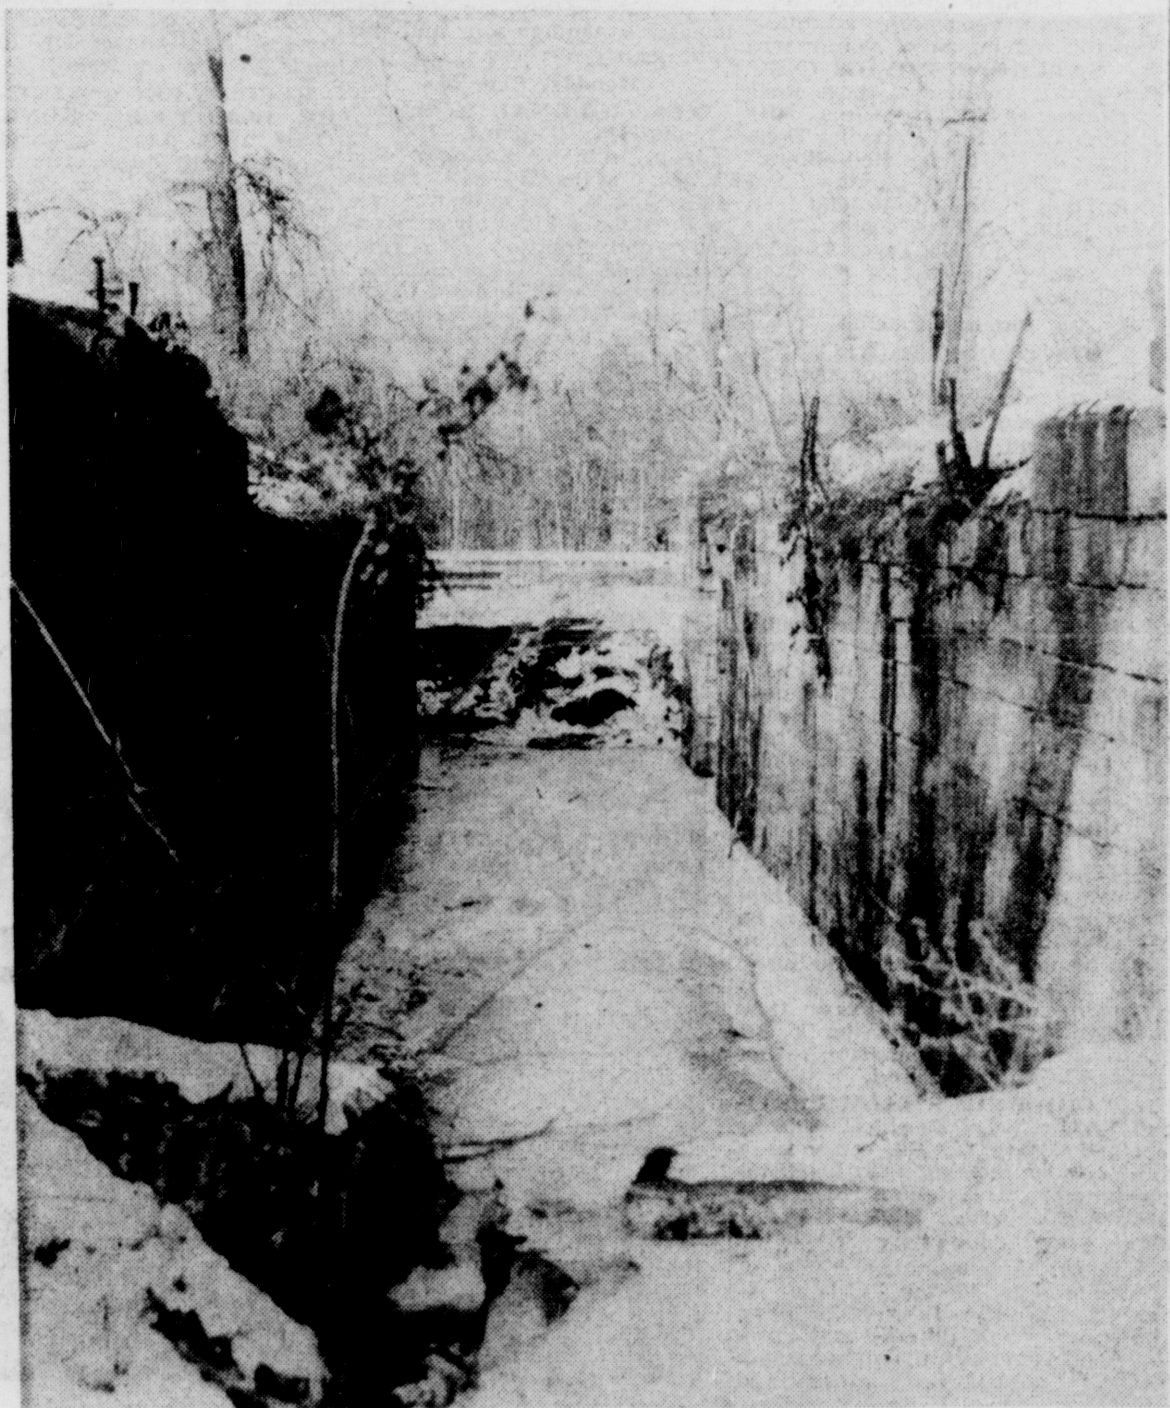

It was decided to extend the canal up the Delaware and Lackawaxen to its forks where it would tie in with a railroad of inclined planes, crossing a tall ridge to the mines. At almost the same time this decision was made, hydraulic cement was discovered on the lower Rondout and the discovery was to influence the very construction of the D & H and the future development of Kingston. The idea of wooden locks was abandoned in favor of stone locks, one almost every mile from Honesdale, Pa., to Kingston along the more than 100 miles of the canal. In Ulster, this meant innumerable locks at Spring Glen, Ellenville, Napanoch, Port Benjamin, Kerhonkson, Port Jackson, Allgerville, High Falls, Lawrenceville, Rosendale, Creek Locks, Eddyville and at tidewater in Kingston. Each of these communities would eventually owe much of its growth to the canal, and the very foundation of Kingston's industrial life (in time, the city produced 3,000,000 barrels of cement annually) was laid with the D & H.

This was the cement later known as Rosendale and, because of it, the Rondout Valley flourished.

Causes for Rejoicing

No one is left to tell the tale in person but on July 13, 1825, hundreds of Ulsterites rode or drove horses and wagons over rough roads and rougher trails to meet with people of other counties at the summit of the watershed, between what was to become Ellenville and Wurtsboro. This large crowd of celebrants sang, prayed, listened to speeches and applauded wildly as the digging of the canal was

WHILE MANY OF THE MEMENTOS of the canal boats and tidewater days in this area have disintegrated or vanished, this lock at High Falls is visible and well-preserved proof that imported Irish and Negro workmen once labored in this valley to bring to reality one of the most daring undertakings of all time. Because of the canal, steamboats on the Hudson River, and a burgeoning cement industry, Kingston and the surrounding area thrived. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Before Streetcars Clanged

This Was the Tow Path That Was

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

It has not been immortalized in song and legend to quite the same extent as the Erie. The nomenclature of its boats is not remembered, perhaps, as well as the names of those which became famous on the Chesapeake and Ohio. Packets with their narrow rigid board bunks and festive travelers did not ply its waters in the same numbers and with the same persistence as they did on those to the north and west of here.

But it was colorful and unique in its own right and the saga of its coming, its duration and its demise will live forever in history. For babies were born on it and grew up beside it. People died because of it—workmen who helped build it, those lost in accidental wrecks and premeditated rammings, the hapless child drivers of towpath teams who became entangled in the ropes and were dragged and battered beyond recognition. And the untold and sometimes uncounted drowning victims—children who swam in it and adults, made unwary by rum, who wandered off its banks—banks which only in rare instances boasted guard rails.

Still, even though its Irish captains were famous for their brawling, and many another boatman was involved in a good fistfight on occasion (or a verbal one noted for its cursing), its moral tone was far different from that of the Erie, the Union and others. It was unique among all others of its type because it was a strict Sabbath-keeping organization. At midnight between Saturday and Sunday, its locks were closed, and nothing in heaven or on earth could produce an event that would cause their operation again until Monday morning.

Applejack and Rum

Old-time missionaries who had their hands full on other waterways of the type, insisted the men here were somewhat quieter and better behaved than their colleagues in the profession. Even when as many as 50 boats found themselves spending Sunday at the some mooring, the rum and applejack, it was said, did not flow as freely and the broken heads were not so much in evidence as elsewhere in the trade. At least, so said the missionaries. The newspapers of the era, however, indicate that the mixture of alcohol, music, roistering and flaming Auld Sod and New Country tempers often resulted in explosive scenes. Small wonder when rum was as cheap as water (three cents for a glass; six cents for a half pint) and applejack sold for a quarter a gallon.

It was, in the final analysis, an irrespressible and irreplaceable marvel, and it appealed alike to hard-drinking, hard-fighting men and to Sunday school excursionists.

Regrettably, only a few ruined remnants remain today to give a glimpse of its greatness. Here in Ulster County, where it could be said to have both began and culminated, only those totally aware of and interested in early history are informed enough to point out its vestiges. What was once a busy water passage is now sometimes nothing more than the faintest indication of an embankment or shallow depression, choked with weeds and

BARGES OF THE TYPE SHOWN HERE carried coal, logs and foodstuffs over the more than 100-mile length of famed Delaware and Hudson Canal during those prosperous years when canal, linking Rondout area with Honesdale, Pa., was credited with being the foundation for the development of Kingston. undergrowth, but with a vague hint of some sort of one-time regularity.

To a family out on a Sunday walk, a hiking couple, or a band of children off on an exploring adventure, falls the wonder of seeing these inconspicuous remains and realizing that something once wended its way here. A few ruined stores, dilapidated tender's houses and abandoned taverns of the era still stand, but most have been replaced by modern day hotels (Ellenville's Nevele Country Club for one) and other enterprises. Eroded towpaths are difficult to define—and where boats once cut water, city streets and state highways such as (Route 52) have been built.

TV's Highlights and Sidelights

Television is currently in the throes of its annual period of adjustment; producers, actors and directors anxiously await word of their series future. There's always the probability of an employment crisis as each new season rolls around. With new producers and a new look in programming each season, everything could change for today's darlings or near darlings of the viewing public. Especially, since it's evident the field that very little editing is done. It doesn't fool anybody but it's paying off commercially.

Channel 17 Converters

Tempo has been giving quite a bit of coverage to Channel 17 out of Schenectady recently for the very obvious reason that this NET station is scheduling programs of superior excellence. For homescreen owners who are not filled in on the matter, Channel 17 is not as hard to get as you think. In fact, educational TV programs can be brought into your home tomorrow with the simple and inexpensive installation of a "converter." This small box which is only slightly larger than a transistor radio; costs between $15 and $30; can be wired to any existing TV set; and can be purchased at almost any hardware, department or discount store. It usually works with existing outdoor antennas, although with new converters, indoor antennas are nearly always supplied.

Sets manufactured since April, 1964, are "all channel" sets equipped to receive both VHF (channels 2-13) and UHF (channels 14-83). Earlier sets can be converted by servicemen at a modest cost. Channel 17 is definitely worth receiving and you can do so by using a small UHF antenna, installed for you by your TV dealer or serviceman.

Week of Shockers

Ruminating over the week just past on television, we arrived at the conclusion that there was some pretty sensational stuff around the networks. Some of the talk shows pulled out all the stops. David Susskind had Dr. Allen Cohen as a guest and this familiar student of Dr. Timothy Leary, who now rejects the use of LSD, puts down all pot smokers and acid heads, as did Bruce Hoffman, a doctorate student and once frequent LSD user, now opposed to the drug. Joe Pyne sented by its most famous member, Peter Ustinov... and the NET Repertory Theatre presentation of two plays by Luigi Pirandello, both reflecting Pirandello's basic theme, that life is pretense and man is the victim of the roles he creates for himself.

In Other Veins

Elsewhere around the dials this week, we enjoyed the satiric "salute to smoking" on Rowan & Martin's Laugh-in; the good script and brilliant photography on I Spy which was filmed on and around Lake Patzcuaro, Mexico; the funny skit takeoff on "Look Who's Coming to Dinner" on the Carol Burnett Show with Carol and Art Carney doing the Tracy-Hepburn roles; and that look at the magnificent and challenging Amazon River on the third National Geographic Special of the season. Also topnotch: NBC's peering into the 21st Century with the second in a series titled Tomorrow's World, this one on the thought provoking issue of the population explosion and its most objective factor, "Feeding the Billions." The awesome fear of "what is next?" hovered over the whole hour, and we got a feeling of caution in the pit of our stomach that man is very close to upsetting the delicate natural balances.

TEMPO TELEVISION LISTINGS for the next week ahead include the following as our best bets of programs slated:

Today, Sat., Feb. 24

WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS (ABC, 5 p.m.). Winter national Drag Racing championships from Pomona, Calif., and International Surfing championships from Makaha Beach, Hawaii.

PURSUIT OF EXCELLENCE: THE VIENNA CHOIR BOYS (ABC, 7:30 p.m.). Alfred Drake narrates a documentary on this winning and talented group of young Austrian choristers, a totally dedicated bunch of youngsters.

SATURDAY MOVIES (NBC, 9 p.m.). Another of those Rock Hudson-Doris Day films, with Gina Lollobrigida playing Doris Day. It's "Strange Bedfellows," with Gig Young playing Tony Randall as the friend who tries to patch up Rock's and Gina's marriage. Comic Terry-Thomas is also in the cast of this 1964 release.

Sunday, Feb. 25

DISCOVERY '68 (ABC, 11:30 a.m.). "The Ghosts of the Old West" come ahauntin' again in a program about Tombstone, Ariz., and the colorful lives of Bat Masterson, Doc Holliday and Wyatt Earp.

THE TALK SHOWS—Face the Nation has a taped interview with South Vietnam President Thieu from Saigon at 12:30 on CBS; Sen. J. William Fulbright discussed the Pueblo incident on Issues and Answers over ABC at 1:30; and Frontiers of Faith (NBC, 1:30) continues its probe into "Is Peace Possible?" with Pauline Frederick and Dr. Arthur Waskow as guests.

EXPERIMENT IN TELEVISION (NBC, 3 p.m.). A joyful and totally absorbing live drama and character study, called "The Hamster of Happiness." Mildred Dunnock is an added old woman who lives in a ramshackle cottage and Susan Tyrell is her brand new daughter-in-law. Goo! horror and mystery yarn involving a son on an errand, a missing father and a first husband.

CHILDREN'S FILM FESTIVAL (CBS, 4:30 p.m.). "Skinny and Fatty" is the story of a poor, skinny kid who helps his chubby, rich chum over the ropes of school and life.

21ST CENTURY (CBS, 6 p.m.). A continuing study of education "From Cradle to Classroom" with some winning shots of toddlers and pre-kindergarten youngsters attending "school" in Syracuse and elsewhere.

OPERATION SHOW BUSINESS (Channel 5, 7 p.m.). Host Joey Adams introduces show biz stars—Lionel Hampton, London Lee, Chubby Checker, Burt Bacharach, Marty Allen, Robert Ryan and Alan Burke, LEONARD BERNSTEIN continues to ride on TV year after year. As conductor of the Young People's Concerts series, he has been acclaimed for bringing fine music to millions of children across the land. who perform and introduce talented new discoveries from New York's ghetto areas.

SUNDAY MOVIES (ABC, 9 p.m.). "Flame Over India" was made in 1960; is all about a Moslem uprising in India and the efforts of a British captain to provide safety for the Maharajah's young son and his American governess.

Monday, Feb. 26

NET JOURNAL (Channels 13 and 17, 9 p.m.). Bill D. Moyers, Pierre Salinger and James C. Hagerty will discuss their jobs as press secretaries to Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson on "Television and the White House." Moderators will be John Chancellor of NBC, Dan Rather of CBS and Edward P. Morgan of NET.

SPECTRUM (Channel 17, 10:30 p.m.). Examining the vast region between the planets and the sun and man's attempts to understand it. Titled "Interplanetary Space," it'll delve into the growth of astronomer's equipment over two centuries and report on the data-gathering activities of today's Mariner Two spacecraft, which has telemetered back 90 million items of information during its four-month journey away from the earth.

Tuesday, Feb. 27

RED SKELTON HOUR (CBS, 8:30 p.m.). As a sequel to his 1960 award-winning performance, Red presents another hour of pantomime, "Laughter—the Universal Language," before an audience of UN diplomats from 46 countries.

REPORT FROM VIETNAM BY WALTER CRONKITE (CBS, 10:30 p.m.). In an effort to shed light on the tangle of recent events in the war and the direction it's taking, this special analyzes recent Cong offenses and interviews South Viet and American diplomats and politicians.

Wednesday, Feb. 28

PRESENT LAUGHTER (ABC, 9 p.m.). Peter O'Toole and Honor Blackman star in Noel Coward's fast-paced comedy, written back in the '40s. It was taped in London and runs for two hours.

Thursday, Feb. 29

Sensationalism of another kind, but intriguing, nevertheless, cropped up in the NET Journal presentation, "The Life of Adolf Hitler." The special 90-minute documentary last Monday night featured interesting footage and photographs and left one confused, in the light of history, how the dictator managed to captivate a nation of 80 million people.

Startling and sensational was the fictionalized account of the murder of Kitty Genovese—"The 39th Witness"—seen last night and bringing home with glaring clarity the fear of many people today to shoulder their responsibilities. This was also an educational TV production, as were two other shows we liked this week: the lively portrait of the Ustinov family pre-

Sensationalism of another kind, but intriguing, nevertheless, cropped up in the NET Journal presentation, "The Life of Adolf Hitler." The special 90-minute documentary last Monday night featured interesting footage and photographs and left one confused, in the light of history, how the dictator managed to captivate a nation of 80 million people.

Startling and sensational was the fictionalized account of the murder of Kitty Genovese—"The 39th Witness"—seen last night and bringing home with glaring clarity the fear of many people today to shoulder their responsibilities. This was also an educational TV production, as were two other shows we liked this week: the lively portrait of the Ustinov family pre-

ABBY DALTON is one of the regulars keeping comin Johnathan Winters company on his weekly fun hour. The CBS variety show, loaded with clever sketches, is aired each Wednesday at 10 p. m. Pert Miss Dalton provides a perfect foil for Winters, and he produces laughs aplenty with his impromptu take-offs and breezy character creations of a whole host of eccentric make-believe types.

Boys and Girls, 9 Years old or under

ENTER THIS CONTEST!

CONTEST RULES

This contest is open to all children who have not reached their tenth birthday on the date that entry is made.

Contest will extend for 13 weeks beginning Saturday, February 24, 1968.

To enter, the child must complete the coloring of the "Coloring Fun" page of the Tiny Turtle section appearing in Saturday's Tempo Magazine of the Kingston Daily Freeman. The child or his parent must print the child's name, age and address and telephone number on the page.

Entries are to be delivered or mailed to the Bank so that they arrive no later than 3 p. m. Wednesday following the publication date of the Tiny Turtle section.

Each week a total of ten entries will be selected at random from all complete entries submitted. Entries so selected will be posted in Kingston Savings Bank Lobby by Friday noon, and each winning contestant will receive a set of 24 Binney & Smith "Crayola" crayons in sturdy plastic containers. A winner automatically comes ineligible for any of the remaining weekly contest awards. That is, only one set of crayons will be awarded to a child.

At the end of 13 weeks, the following grand prize winners will be selected from among the 130 weekly winners by a panel of judges: First prize, $25 U. S. Savings Bond; the second prize, a $10 Savings Account (or addition of $10 to the child's present account at Kingston Savings Bank); third prize, a $5 savings account (or addition of $5 to present Kingston Savings Bank account.)

Decision of the judges will be final. All entries become the property of the Kingston Savings Bank and none can be returned.

GRAND PRIZES

FIRST PRIZE . . $25 U. S. Savings Bond

SECOND PRIZE . . $10 Savings Account (or $10 added to winner's present account at Kingston Savings Bank).

THIRD PRIZE . . . $5 Savings Account (or $5 added to winner's present account at Kingston Savings Bank).

PLUS

130 New Plastic containers of 24 different brilliant colors of "Crayola" crayons —10 to be awarded each week for 13 weeks.

Painting Sold

Two paintings by Woodstock artist Dan Gottschalk are currently being exhibited at Salvucci's Restaurant, West Hurler. One canvas, measuring 30 x 40, was recently shown at Albany's Institute of History and Art, and has been purchased by the restaurant owners for their permanent collection. Titled, "Oh, Mysterious World of Letters," it was painted with the idea in mind that the world is full of many different languages. Artist Gottschalk says most of these languages are represented in the painting and the circle drawn in the middle represents the world itself. The second painting is on loan to Salvucci's and diners who enjoy the superlative Italian food there will recognize it as Gottschalk's "Allen, the Young Collector." It is a portrait of a young area artist, surrounded by part of his private collection of old railroad lanterns.

Faces and Scene from THIEF

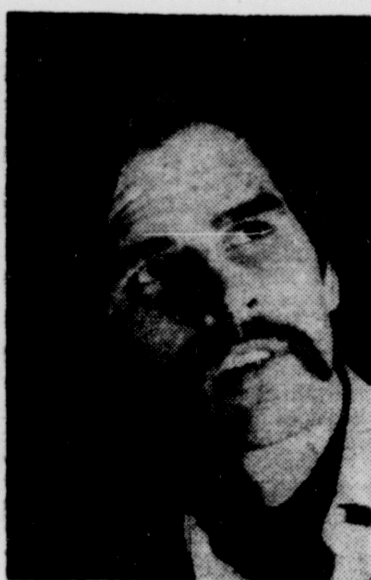

"SYLVIE'S NIGHTMARE" SCENE from Holly Beye's new 3-act play with music, THE BANANA THIEF, opening Friday, March 1, at 8:30 p. m. in the Little Theatre off the Green, Woodstock. That's Edith LeFever examining contents of dinner kettle at the Mission Dolores. Larry Shufelt and David Boyle are to her left and right. With backs to camera are Jo Chalmers (L) and Volney Crosswell. THIEF is being staged by director Robert Burgos in the round and the audience will be seated in double dows around the playing area. Burgos hails from New York City; has acted and directed off-Broadway; and worked in television, films and summer stock in theatres across the country. Last summer he staged Oscar winner Howard Koch's "A Revolutionary Affair" at the Woodstock Playhouse, as well as an original one-act play at the Group 212 arts center in Saugerties. Presented by performing Arts of Woodstock, THIEF has a cast of eight with Jane Traum, Larry Shufeldt and David Boyle making their first appearances locally. THIEF'S music was composed by John LeFever. Accompaniment at all performances will be played by folk guitarist Eileen Friedman. (Charles Bryson photos).

It stars Broadway's original Dolly, as well as Oscar-winner Walter Matthau, comic George Burns, western singer Eddy Arnold, and the rocking Association.

NET FESTIVAL (Channel 17, 9 p.m.). "The World of Kurt Weill," a tribute to the composer by his widow, singer Lotte Lenya. Covers Weill's life from pre-war Germany to the Broadway of the 1940's.

Acting Plus

NEW YORK (AP) — The plays of Edward Albee, Richard Barr and Clinton Wilder for a Broadway acting company are being expanded to include other performing arts.

The partnership originally scheduled a series of repertory revivals for this season at the Billy Rose Theater but the venture was deferred because of complications over some rights. As now envisioned, a theater will be taken over next season with programs including modern dance, avant-garde films, folk rock and chamber music.

NET PLAYHOUSE (Channels 13 and 17, 8:30 p.m.). History springs to life with this premiere of "The Young Elizabeth," a drama recounting the perilous years from Henry VIII's death to the accession of his young daughter, "Queen Bess," to the English throne.

"Ghosts" Bows At Paltz Soon

Henrik Ibsen's "Ghosts" will be presented by the New Paltz Players of State University College as their major winter season production Feb. 28-29 and March 1-2 in the college's McKenna Theater. Curtain time for all performances is 8:30.

"Ghosts," one of the most durable of all plays, is set in Norway in the late 1800's is a commentary on a society haunted by its past and unwilling to face the reality of the present.

The cast of "Ghosts" has been in rehearsal since January under the direction of Dr. Alfreds Straumanis of the Theatre Arts faculty. Kammy Gray is cast as the widowed Mrs. Alving, and her ill-fated son, Oswald, is played by Richard Casselman. Kevin Barkhausen takes the role of the hypocritical Pastor Manders. Walter Von Ignatius portrays Engstrand, a carpenter, and his young daughter, Regina, is played by Janet Jones.

While the actors spend their time in rehearsal, Players' technical crews labor evenings in the scene shop, building the set for the play. Designed by Raymond T. Kurdt, associate professor of Theatre Arts, the set is a Victorian interior—the Alving living room, in which all of the action of the play occurs.

Construction of the set, under the supervision of Donald G. Beaulieu, technical director, is now nearly complete.

The theater box office is now open and tickets are available week-days from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Hawkes moved from Florida to Vermont, the collection was put in a cardboard box and stored in a Manchester, Vt., bank. There the papers remained until 1964, when it occurred to Mr. Hawkes that his son's class at Dorset elementary school might like to see an actual Washington letter as part of its impending celebration of Washington's Birthday.

He inquired at the Dorset Library for someone interested in American history who might be willing to talk with the class about the letter. The librarian referred him to Prof. Hislop, who lives in Dorset.

Almost Too Busy

"John called me," Prof. Hislop recalled later, "and asked if I'd be willing to look at his family papers and perhaps talk to the children about them. I said I was very busy but that I'd look into it, so he delivered a cardboard box full of papers to my house. It sat on the couch for a week, until I finally got around to it one evening. "When I opened that box I went into a state of shock."

Polish Poet Lectures Here

A visiting Polish poet and playwright, Jerzy S. Sito, literary director of Theatre Powszechny and winner of the 1958 Pozan Poetry Prize, will present a public lecture on "Literature Under Pressure: Post-War Poetry in Poland," at State University College, New Paltz, March 1, at 8:30 p.m. in the College Union Building.

The thirty-three year old poet is being brought to New Paltz by the campus International Relations Association. A participant in the International Visitor Program of the Department of State, he is presently doing research on a projected book on American poets Robert Frost, W. H. Auden, Robert Lowell, Robinson Jeffers, Richard Wilbur, Charles Tomlinson, and T. S. Eliot.

Poet Sito was educated in England after World War II and has translated and produced in Poland a number of Shakespeare plays, among them "Julius Caesar," which is now in rehearsal in National Theatre, Warsaw. Also in rehearsal now in Germany is his "Jutro," an opera based on Joseph Conrad's "Tomorrow."

A reception for the guest will be held after the lecture.

UGG&LBBBS

Announcement was made this week by The Upper Glasco Girls and the Lower Byrdcliffe Boys Benevolent Society that the annual March 12 meeting will be held in the New York City apartment of Louise Heyneman Weinberg on East 81st Street. The decision to hold the meeting there was based on forecasts of the probability of inclement weather at that time in both the current issues of The Farmer's Almanac and Ford's Almanac.

New members are reminded that at this meeting, recipients will be nominated for the annual Acapulco Award, first established by Dr. Jacob Weinberg in 1897 on his second visit to the art colony of Woodstock. This was, of course, several years prior to the actual establishment of the Byrdcliffe colony. In any event, the over the intervening years by awards have been continued the biannually elected committee of the organization.

Musical and Coward

LONDON (AP) — Two short plays from Noel Coward's "Tonight at 8:30" are being combined into a musical for next fall, "Mr. and Mrs."

John Neville is to star in the adaptation by John and Ross Taylor of "Brief Encounter" and "Fumed Oak." Cosponsoring the production with Bernard Allott are George W. George and a k Granat who plan to present it later on Broadway.

One of the Great Historical

Prof. Hislop called in Dr. Edwin K. Tolan, librarian of the Schaffer Library at Union, who took charge of the bibliographical study, authentication, and evaluation of the papers.

The entire collection was moved to the Union College library in 1966. Under terms of the agreement with Mr. Hawkes, Union will hold the papers "for the purpose of scholarly research" under the general supervision of Prof. Hislop.

Deadline Nears For Art Talent

Deadline for the art talent contest for high school seniors sponsored by the New York Federation of Women's Clubs is March 15.

The New York winner will compete for one of four national scholarships offered by Hallmark Cards, Inc. The scholarships of $1,000, $750, $650, and $600 are for tuition and fees at the college, university, or art school selected by the student. Alternates will be chosen and in the event any of the top four winners cannot take advantage of their scholarships, the alternates will move up.

Competition is open to seniors at public and private schools who will enter college in the fall of 1968. Students should enter through an affiliated women's club in their home town or school district. Ulster County has clubs in Kingston, Saugerties and Rosendale. If that is impossible, entries will be accepted by state officials.

A jury of art educators and painters will select the winning painting to represent New York in the national competition. This is the 16th year the General Federation of Women's Clubs and Hallmark Cards have cosponsored the event. More than 45 promising young artists have received Hallmark scholarships since the program's inception.

John Neville is to star in the adaptation by John and Ross Taylor of "Brief Encounter" and "Fumed Oak." Cosponsoring the production with Bernard Grant are George W. George and Granat who plan to present it later on Broadway.

Prof. Hislop called in Dr. Edwin K. Tolan, librarian of the Schaffer Library at Union, who took charge of the bibliographical study, authentication, and evaluation of the papers.

The entire collection was moved to the Union College library in 1966. Under terms of the agreement with Mr. Hawkes, Union will hold the papers "for the purpose of scholarly research" under the general supervision of Prof. Hislop.

Deadline Nears For Art Talent

Deadline for the art talent contest for high school seniors sponsored by the New York Federation of Women's Clubs is March 15.

The New York winner will compete for one of four national scholarships offered by Hallmark Cards, Inc. The scholarships of $1,000, $750, $650, and $600 are for tuition and fees at the college, university, or art school selected by the student. Alternates will be chosen and in the event any of the top four winners cannot take advantage of their scholarships, the alternates will move up.

Competition is open to seniors at public and private schools who will enter college in the fall of 1968. Students should enter through an affiliated women's club in their home town or school district. Ulster County has clubs in Kingston, Saugerties and Rosendale. If that is impossible, entries will be accepted by state officials.

A jury of art educators and painters will select the winning painting to represent New York in the national competition. This is the 16th year the General Federation of Women's Clubs and Hallmark Cards have co-sponsored the event. More than 45 promising young artists have received Hallmark scholarships since the program's inception.

Artur Hated Music as a Child

Famed concert pianist Artur Schnabel has confessed he hated to practice as a child and was in his forties before he knew any particular piece of music "absolutely well."

'Mother's Kisses'

ADAPTED BY AUTHOR

NEW YORK (AP) — After two previous efforts by others, Bruce Jay Friedman is doing a stage adaptation of his best-selling novel "A Mother's Kisses." The musical project is scheduled for next season by Broadway producers Lester Osterman, Lawrence Kasha and Richard Horner. Friedman's first play, "Scuba Duba" is a current off-Broadway hit.

view in the current issue of a national magazine. "Music lessons mean this horrible dictatorial attitude of the professors. They slap your fingers; they shout at you: 'Can't you learn that? You must practice scales!'"

Rubinstein, currently on a concert tour of the United States, told how he managed to get around practicing while living with a family in Berlin. "They were not musical," he explained. "I had my orders to do two hours' practicing. I closed my door with a key—not to be disturbed. I would put a novel of Zola, or some other writer I was not allowed to read, on the music stand in front of me. Then I had some chocolates to my right and cherries to my left, and I played with my left hand, doodle, doodle, doodle; then I did diddle, diddle, diddle, and chocolates, yum, yum. And I was reading my book." Then they would think he had "really studied with one hand all the time."

He says that other pianists' bad form "encouraged me to neglect the strictly technical work. I got away with it in Slavic countries and in Latin countries, like Italy. They adored it. They said my wrong notes were better than the right notes of others. But in America and England they were critical of my playing. They knew what was missing, and they said so."

Rubinstein, who married in his forties, credited his wife with giving him the drive "to start playing the piano the way it should be played." "I couldn't honestly say about any particular piece of music up to my marriage that I knew it absolutely well," he explained. "Not one single piece. Well, my wife made me do it, and without forcing me. I just felt it deep inside me. And she didn't know she was doing it." "I simply wouldn't have her being shamed by somebody who might tell her, 'Oh, if only your husband had worked at the piano more seriously, he might be one of the greatest.'"

Toward News Plays

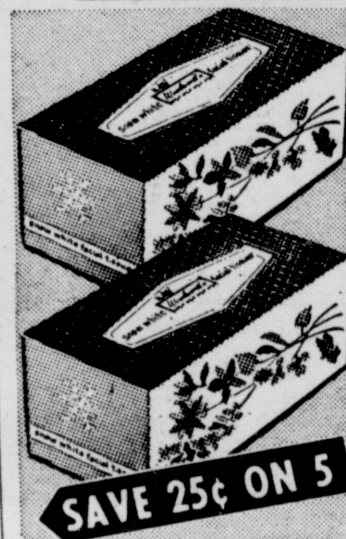

DUBLIN (AP) — The Abbey Theater is starting a workshop for playwrights in August, with the aim of stimulating more creative activity.

Some criticism has been directed at the Abbey recently for over-reliance on adaptations of books. Announcement of the school was made by Thomas MacAnna, artistic director of the theater.

Bought Film Rights

NEW YORK (AP) — Twentieth Century-Fox has bought the film rights to five theater productions currently on Broadway. Included in the list are "Hello, Dolly!," "Everything in the Garden," "Staircase," "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" and "The Only Game in Town." The studio also has bought "The Flip Side," a London comedy, which may open here later this year.

"Coloring Fun"

Tiny Turtle fans nine years old and under have an added incentive for completing the "Coloring Fun" page beginning today, thanks to Kingston Savings Bank.

The bank will display 10 selected coloring contest entries in its Wall Street lobby each week for the next 13 weeks. Each child whose work is picked for exhibit will receive a free container of crayons from the bank.

Even more exciting, at the end of 13 weeks, three grand prize winners will be chosen by a panel of judges. First prize in the coloring contest will be a $25 U. S. Savings Bond; second prize a $10 savings account at the bank; and third prize a $5 savings account at Kingston Savings. If, by chance, second or third prize winners already have savings accounts at the bank, the prize winning amounts will be added to their present account.

So get in on all the fun immediately by following these contest rules:

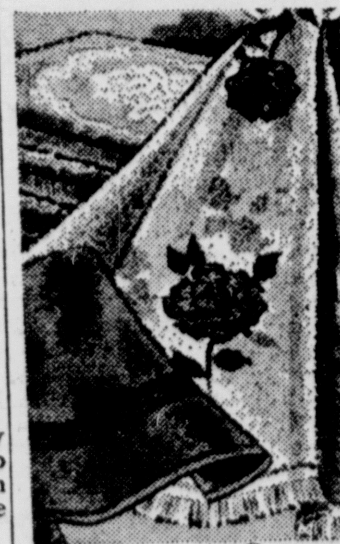

All children who have not reached their 10th birthday on the date that entry is made may compete in the contest, which will run for 13 weeks, beginning today. To enter, the child should simply complete the coloring of the "Coloring Fun" page of the Tiny Turtle section in TEMPO, and the child or his or her parent must print the child's name, age, address and phone number on the page.

Entries should be delivered or mailed to the bank, making sure they arrive no later than 3 p. m. Wednesday following the publication date of the previous Saturday's Tiny Turtle section.

Each week 10 entries will be selected from those submitted and these will be displayed in the bank lobby by Friday noon. Each of the 10 weekly winners will receive a set of brilliant colored crayons in a sturdy plastic container, 24 colors in all. Such winners automatically become ineligible for any of the remaining weekly contest awards, meaning that only one set of crayons will be awarded to any one child.

At the end of 13 weeks, grand prize winners will be selected from among the 130 weekly winners. A panel of judges will award first, second and third prizes of a $25 U. S. Savings Bond; a $10 savings account (or addition of $10 to the child's present account at Kingston Savings Bank); and a $5 savings account (or addition of $5 to any present account at the bank).

So, get those entries in, kids. All you have to do is color away to the best of your ability, remembering that the decision of the judges will be final . . . and that all entries become the property of Kingston Savings Bank and that none can be returned.

inaugurated. To financial backer Philip Hone, then Mayor of New York City, fell the honor of turning the first shovel of dirt and making the oration of the day. If he was no William Jennings Bryan, he was silver-throated enough to please the picnickers present that day.

By the following spring, 60 miles of the canal from the Delaware to the Hudson were usable and plans have been changed to shorten the canal by several miles and extend the inclined planes railroad to make up the difference.

Historians point out that the men behind the D & H had very advanced ideas for their time. Not only did they build and defend railroads, they planned to use a newfangled contraption (then the butt of universal joking)—a locomotive—on the lowest level of the line.

And, so, it is impossible to write about the D&H without mentioning its most famous engine, the "Stourbridge Lion," the most colorful and practical of its type to roar over a permanent track on this continent. Brought from England, it boasted four wheels of oak bordered by heavy iron tires and a picture of a lion on its boiler. The Lion was cheered by spectators along the way as it was shipped up the Hudson to Kingston and through the canal to Rosendale. But its first trial run was its last. Although it did nobly, it was discarded because it was believed to be too heavy for the trestle work and rails over which it would run. It rusted away for many years in a shed; was eventually restored and placed in a museum, long after the canal that had sidetracked it fell victim to other locomotives and railroads. The Lion, it might be said, had the last laughing roar . . . or at the very least, a modicum of revenge.

First Boats Through

If the Lion was dead, the canal was very much alive. Historic firsts were being chalked up as bands of musicians, fireworks, and volleys of musketry greeted the first coal boats to ply their way through the whole canal, and it has been reported that the first squadron through stopped at each lock and town to share in toasts drunk to the captains and their crews. It must have been a very wet month above, below, and under decks.

If the canal had been built primarily to carry coal, it also carried a fair share of wood and foodstuffs. Within less than a year after its official opening, as many as 110 boats and 106 rafts were arriving at Eddyville in any given week. It is not difficult to visualize the excitement this type of activity created among youngsters on shore and tavern patrons along the way. There was excitement and adventure, too, in boarding one of the few packets that maneuvered a portion of the waters for a short time, or planning a barge-top picnic or excursion on a summer Sunday. Farmers and other residents the canal often owned their own boats and used the D&H to advantage for business or holidaying.

Thousands of cords of wood, thousands of tons of coal, and thousands of barrels of potatoes came down the D&H, eventually making improvements necessary. The canal was enlarged and updated twice — deepened so that more tons could be carried by each boat. Along its length, some 100 locks were changed to handle boats of larger tonnage and they began operating feverishly around the clock. Additional boats were built, dividends poured in and prizes were offered boatmen for quick trips.

The Boom Years

So big, so booming had the D&H become and so enormously profitable its cargo that new towns of fair population rose beside it where only pine forests had been before. Steamboats burning coal instead of wood helped business soar. So did homesteaders, who made the switch when they found coal was cheaper. Witness the fact that in the beginning only 7,000 tons passed through the canal and that at the height of its heyday, almost 3-million tons were being moved.

Profits zoomed, capital doubled, other mining companies paid for use of the canal, and fortunes were made and spent. There were often problems, too, of course—production woes, cut-throat competition, striking miners, epidemics that wrought havoc with operations, and labor shortages. But none of those problems took their revenge on the canal as did the company's own foresight in building and buying railroads. The handwriting on the wall that spelled doom to the D&H came when it took over the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad, opening a new route to the north and east for its coal. No one needed a crystal ball to prophesy that the D&H would soon be history.

The canal had been able to overcome a total grade of well over 1,000 feet through its intricate system of locks, but it could not overcome the rush of progress. Traffic on what had been one of the busiest thoroughfares in America steadily decreased and Kingston became less and less an important tidewater town. Fewer and fewer tons of "black stone," cords of wood, or anything else and a fickle America turned its affection and enthusiasm to railroads, which in turn have been superseded today by jet planes.

The Final Days

The men who had earned fortunes on the D&H suddenly found her an burdensome and unnecessary encumbrance, and those who worked her were forced to find other jobs. By 1898, it was evident that the D&H men wanted a divorce from their longtime helpmate, who had catered to their whims almost too well. The few remaining boats stopped cutting the waters of the D&H, the water itself was drawn off, and she was abandoned like a young bride left waiting at the altar.

In retrospect, the D&H was unquestionably one of the most famous, busiest and most profitable of the many canals which once dotted the country. She had helped to make this area known across the nation before she passed into oblivion. But she is remembered today only by historians, members of historical societies, or descendants of those who were involved with her history. Still, there is mute testimony to her coming, duration and demise in the relics of locks and aqueducts and other memorabilia, including the rotting hulls of boats and barges along the banks of Rondout Creek. Only these remain to suggest the onetime importance of the ports of call along the route of the D&H.

For Seeger Fans

TEMPO feels it is not going out on a limb when it insists that the most respected of the groups during the big folk boom was the Weavers. Now Vanguard has issued "The Weavers' Songbag," a collection of their folk songs. The Weavers, Pete Seeger, Fred Hellerman, Ronnie Gilbert and Lee Hays, did a lot of careful reshaping and additional writing, "adapting" the songs they sang. Seeger, of course, lives across the river in Dutchess County and has appeared in concerts in Ulster. The Weavers disbanded a few years ago but on this new LP, some of their favorites can be heard—"Erie Canal," "Aunt Rhodie," "Old Riley," "Here Rattler Here," and "This Land Is Your Land." Seeger presently has his own regular TV show over NET Channel 13 and will shortly be seen for the second time this season over national television on The Smothers Brothers Show.

Seven by Royal

STRATFORD-ON-AVON (AP) — Seven productions will be presented during the April-November season by the Royal Shakespeare Company. Because of movie-making commitments, Peter Hall, the troupe's artistic director, has assigned the staging of all shows to guest artists. Included in the display are to be "Julius Caesar," "King Lear," "The Merry Wives of Windsor," "Troilus and Cressida," "Much Ado About Nothing" and Marlowe's "Doctor Faustus," all new productions; and revival of previously staged concepts of "As You Like It."

POSING FOR A CAMERAMAN of long ago was this typical group of workmen at a barrel factory. The barrels manufactured by them were used to transport foodstuffs, potatoes and other edibles on the D&H Canal. Horse and mule drivers along the towpath of the canal were often boys, some as young as eight-years-old and some of whom met death because of their jobs.

Seeger presently has his own regular TV show over NET Channel 13 and will shortly be seen for the second time this season over national television on The Smothers Brothers Show.

Seven by Royal

STRATFORD-ON-AVON (AP)—Seven productions will be presented during the April-November season by the Royal Shakespeare Company. Because of movie-making commitments, Peter Hall, the troupe's artistic director, has assigned the staging of all shows to guest artists. Included in the display are to be "Julius Caesar," "King Lear," "The Merry Wives of Windsor," "Troilus and Cressida," "Much Ado About Nothing" and Marlowe's "Doctor Faustus," all new productions; and revival of previously staged concepts of "As You Like It."

POSING FOR A CAMERAMAN of long ago was this typical group of workmen at a barrel factory. The barrels manufactured by them were used to transport foodstuffs, potatoes and other edibles on the D&H Canal. Horse and mule drivers along the towpath of the canal were often boys, some as young as eight-years-old and some of whom met death because of their jobs.

THE HAPPIEST MILLIONAIRE. Walt Disney died more than a year ago, leaving last two movies he personally supervised as an epitaph. Recently, his animated cartoon, The Jungle Book, delighted local audiences and proved to be the best film of its kind since Dumbo. Now we have the opportunity of seeing "The Happiest Millionaire," which is quite another cup of tea indeed. Currently playing at Kingston's Community Theater, it employs a great deal of talent in a musical comedy about Anthony J. Drexel Biddle.

Biddle, of course, was the Philadelphia millionaire who lived happily on a lot of money back in the early years of this century. Wealthy, full of vitality, and totally eccentric, he saw nothing unusual about conducting both Bible and boxing classes in the mansion he shared with a herd of alligators. For hobbies, he collected punch-drunk prize fighters, ex-convicts, reformed drunks and, of course, alligators.

Shifts to Films

NEW YORK (AP) — After a single play production, the off-Broadway Evergreen Theater is being shifted to a movies-only schedule.

The 162-seat auditorium was acquired last year by Barney Rosset, president of Grove Press. The first presentation, "The Beard," a controversial two-character play, closed with a deficit after 100 performances.

Besides new films, the house intends to schedule material acquired in Grove's purchase of Cinema 16's collection of experimental shorts.

Sounds like the perfect fellow to be the hero of a movie? Especially if likable old Fred MacMurray plays him? Not quite!

There is a nuttiness that would seem to be necessary and a missing magic lacking in this film. It is a far cry from "Mary Poppins" although it seemingly tries to emulate that Disney masterpiece. We could not get interested in the tedious romance between singer John Davidson and that Cinderella girl, Lesley Ann Warren. We thought the funny servants (dancer Tommy Steele as a butler and Hermione Baddeley as a long-suffering cook) were very non-funny. And Greer Garson as Biddle's wife was just doing Mrs. Miniver all over again with a nod in the direction of Eleanor Roosevelt.

Although we view Millionaire as an excursion into fake nostalgia and a parody on some of Disney's more superb work, we're sure it will appeal to hundreds of local children and their parents. It's good clean fun and it's exceedingly moral.

Tommy Steele is a marvelous talent in spite of his misuse here and MacMurray really does nothing wrong, although what he does is pretty humorless. There are some clever scenes in which the daughter of the Biddle household (Miss Warren) is taught the tricks of the boy-catching trade by her finishing school roommate, Rosemary (cute Joyce Bulifant). These scenes are done in the tradition of such great vamps as Nita Naldi and Theda Bara, and Miss Bulifant's career should soar as a result.

If the moral here is that

JOHN DAVIDSON serenades Lesley Ann Warren to the tune of "Detroit" in this scene from Walt Disney's "The Happiest Millionaire." Song tells of how the young couple falls in love, and takes them through four seasons and numerous costume and scene changes. Technicolor film, which also stars Fred MacMurray, Tommy Steele, Greer Garson and Geraldine Page, is currently on screen at Kingston's Community Theater.

money and happiness mix, then Millionaire does nobly in proving its point. Biddle's daughter, in spite of the fact that she was raised to the rigors of boxing and other sports, lands the biggest catch of any social season for a spouse. Everything gets ironed out in the elopement scene finale when Cordy (Miss Warren) and Angier Duke (John Davidson), the handsome heir to the fabulous Duke tobacco fortune, head for Detroit, where he plans to spend his life designing automobiles. For some reason or other, per, who was made a Dame of the British Empire last year. Emmy winner and Oscar nominee Geraldine Page has allowed herself to be cast as Mrs. Duke, and the marvelous Gladys Cooper, who was made a Dame of the British Empire last year, turns up as a dowager aunt of the Biddle clan.

Musical Concert Slated March 1

A concert of liturgical music, in celebration of Jewish Music Month, will be presented at Kingston's Temple Emanuel, Friday, March 1. The concert will be conducted by Dr. John F. Park, organist and choir-master of Temple Emanuel and Trinity Lutheran Church here, and will feature Leonard Zimet, oboe and English horn soloist.

The service-program will begin at 7:30 p. m. and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Dr. Park, who is coordinator and associate professor of Music at Ulster County Community College, has been a faculty member there for five years. He also serves UCCC as chairman of the faculty and conductor of the College Chorus.

A native of South Carolina, he received degrees in music and musicology from the University of North Carolina and Columbia University. He has also studied at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and with such noted teachers as Jennie Tourel, Olga Ryss, Mark Harrell and Robert Powell. Before coming to UCCC, he taught at Columbia, the state universities of Florida and Georgia, and Virginia Intermont College.

The co-author of a volume on Music Fundamentals and a prolific composer for male chorus groups, he also serves as an officer of the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors and holds membership in Phi Mu Alpha, Phi Delta Kappa and American Guild of Organists.

Conductor Park has announced the following compositions as part of the March 1 program at the Albany Avenue Temple: Liturgy for the Third Sabbath Evening; Kaddish with Margaret Roosa as contralto soloist; Adonoy Eyl Rachum with soprano solo by Cecelia Keehn; and several other compositions for the listening pleasure of the audience.

The concert promises to be a rare musical treat for residents of the area and the public will certainly not want to miss it.
